Acclamations In Great Britain Total Sixty-four

All Party Leaders But Baldwin Face Contests Oct. 27

MacDonald, Lloyd George and Henderson Among Those Whose Constituents Will Go to Polls in British General Election; Nominations To-day Line Up 551 Ridings for Balloting

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 16. — Candidates totaling sixty-four have been elected by acclamation to the new House of Commons of Great Britain. Polling on October 27 will be for 551 seats. The total of acclamations is unusually large, owing to the efforts of the different government parties to avoid conflicts between their respective candidates.

When nominations closed to-day, including the elections for the Scottish universities, the unopposed elections were as follows: Conservatives, forty-six; National Liberals, twelve; Labor Party, six. Total, sixty-four.

All the political party leaders, except Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader and president of the council, have to fight for re-election. Mr. Baldwin was returned by acclamation in his old seat, Bewdley, Worcester. There were few surprises among the returns of members without opposition.

FACE OPPOSITION

Premier MacDonald, Sir Herbert Sameul, Liberal, who is Home Secretary, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, and Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Labor Party leader, all have contests on their hands.

Capt. the Rt. Hon. Edward Fitzroy, Conservative, Speaker of the last House of Commons, was elected without opposition in Daventry, Northampton.

TWO AGAINST MACDONALD

Premier MacDonald faces an official Labor and a Communist candidate in Seaham, Durham. He is a Nationalist Labor Candidate, while the Labor Party, of which he was formerly parliamentary chief, nominated William Coxon. In 1929 Mr. MacDonald was re-elected by an overwhelming majority in a four-cornered contest.

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, head of the free-trade section of the Liberal Party, will have a straight fight in Carnarvon with Capt. F. Page-Gourley, Conservative. In Carnarvon in 1929 Mr. Lloyd George had a 4,590 majority over the combined vote for Conservative and Labor opponents.

TWO AGAINST HENDERSON

Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor Party, chief opposition faction, has a fight against Admiral Campbell, Conservative, and a Communist candidate in Burnley. Mr. Henderson was re-elected in Burnley in 1929 in a three-cornered contest, on a minority vote.

NO ROOM HERE FOR PESSIMISM, SAYS STILLMAN

President of the Imperial Oil Company Speaks Confidently of the Future

Good Crops in Places on the Prairies; Speaks About B.C. Industries

Charles O. Stillman, president of the Imperial Oil Company, who is at the Empress Hotel to-day in the course of his annual business tour, takes the view that there is no room for pessimism in British Columbia.

The fact that British Columbia, according to quoted statistics, had the highest per capita income of any of the Canadian provinces and that it ranked third in total effective income, suggested purchasing power which could not be assailed by depression, he said.

In commenting upon the increase in lumber exports from British Columbia, Mr. Stillman expressed the opinion that the growth of the lumber industry within the last decade is almost certain promise that it will make an excellent recovery when conditions become more normal.

MINING OUTLOOK

Touching upon the mining industry, he said he had been much impressed by the fact that B.C. had been able to keep production to a point not far below the record levels of 1929 and 1930, in the face of the distressed condition of the base metal markets.

This is due, in his opinion, to skilful operation and to the great natural advantages which British Columbia metal industries have over most of their competitors.

Mr. Stillman sees a more hopeful tone as the result of investigations that he has made during his transcanada tour. His observations on the prairies had confirmed the more hopeful tone of reports which have lately been received from the Imperial Oil organizations in the field. The prairie farmer

French Premier Voyaging To Visit U.S. President

Pierre Laval, Premier of France, above, and a glimpse of the Washington home of former Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, now U.S. Ambassador to France, which he will use as a residence during his stay in the United States capital.

Havre, France, Oct. 16. — Premier Pierre Laval, accompanied by a large party, arrived in Havre before noon to-day to sail for the United States, where he will discuss important problems with President Hoover.

When he sails on the liner Ile de France this afternoon it will be the first time a French premier has left his native shores to go to the United States since Aristide Briand attended the Washington Naval Conference in 1921.

A large crowd was on hand to wish him farewell when he left Paris, all of his cabinet ministers, except M. Briand, were at the station, as well as Andre Francois-Poncet, French Ambassador to Germany. He declined to make a statement.

BISHOP CANNON LISTED FOR TRIAL IN WASHINGTON

Southern U.S. Methodist Leader Indicted For 1928 Presidential Activities

Miss Ada Burroughs of Richmond, Va., Treasurer, Also to Stand Trial

Washington, Oct. 16—Bishop James Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was indicted by a grand jury here to-day for violation of the federal corrupt practices law during the 1928 presidential campaign.

Miss Ada L. Burroughs of Richmond was indicted with the Southern Methodist leader for conspiracy to violate the federal statute.

Bishop Cannon was chairman of the headquarters committee of Southern Anti-Smith Democratics in the 1928 campaign and Miss Burroughs was treasurer.

CONTRIBUTIONS NOT REPORTED

The indictment was based on the failure of Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs to report contributions of Edwin C. Jameson, New York capitalist and republican, who gave a total of $65,300 to the bishop.

The grand jury ruling was reached after a brief inquiry during which a score of witnesses testified. With few exceptions they were the same witnesses who appeared in the Senate campaign funds committee investigation of the bishop's activities.

BOY IS SAVED BY "MECHANICAL LUNG"

Fresno, Cal., Oct. 16.—After five weeks in the respirator at the Fresno County Hospital, Leroy Weber, sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Weber of Fresno, has so far recovered from the paralytic effects of infantile paralysis that he is able now to breathe for sixteen hours a day without the assistance of the "mechanical lung."

Hospital attaches said they believe he will recover the use of all his limbs and will not be seriously marked by the paralysis.

Yonan Maru With Over Forty Men Aboard Asks Help; Silence Follows

American Mail Liner President Jefferson, With Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh Aboard, Rushed Through Temptesuous Seas to Aid Stricken Ship; Deckload Shifts and Yonan Maru May Have Turned Over and Sank; Word Anxiously Awaited From Captain of President Jefferson

Shortly after it had sent out the SOS message: "We are sinking. Come quickly," it is believed the Japanese freighter Yonan Maru turned turtle and plunged to the bottom of the Pacific Ocean this morning, 500 miles west of Dutch Harbor, in the Aleutian Islands. Attempts of the American Mail liner President Jefferson, on which Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are crossing from Japan to Victoria, to communicate with the stricken Japanese vessel twenty minutes after the SOS message had been received, gave rise to this belief.

The President Jefferson was sixty-five miles from the stricken vessel at 6 o'clock this morning.

At 12.43 p.m. (P.S.T.) the Mackay radio intercepted a message from the President Jefferson saying it was near where the Yonan Maru sent out its 6 a.m. message but it had found no trace of the ship. The Jefferson said it would continue to search in the vicinity.

First word of the Yonan Maru's plight was received in Victoria at 2 o'clock this morning by the wireless operator at the Gonzales station. The message was faint and no details were given. Fuller information was received in Victoria in dispatches from Los Angeles, Portland and San Francisco, where Mackey Radio branches picked up further messages regarding the vessel's trouble.

CREW'S FATE UNKNOWN

The fate of the Yonan's crew, composed of between forty and fifty men, all Japanese, is unknown. It is thought possible some of them may have escaped in the freighter's lifeboats, but whether they would survive the heavy sea running at the time is problematical. Equinoctial gales are raging over the Pacific at this time of the year and it is thought by shipping men in Victoria heavy seas washed over the vessel's deck, loosening her deck-load, giving her a steep list and filling her holds and engine-room with water that probably put out the fires and helplessly crippled her power.

CARRIED LUMBER

The Yonan Maru was proceeding to Yokohama from Portland, Ore., with a full cargo of lumber loaded at the Oregon port. Of approximately 8,000 tons, 415 feet long, with a beam of fifty-five feet and depth of thirty-five feet, the vessel was built in Japan in 1919. She sailed in Kobe registration, being owned by the Nippon Kyoda Kisen Kaisha. Operating as a tramp freighter, she was under charter to a Japanese shipping agency.

The President Jefferson is due in Victoria next Tuesday morning. Whether this morning's delay will affect her arrival here is not yet known. It is probable she will spend some time in the vicinity of where the Yonan Maru was at the time she sent out the first and only SOS message.

DOLLAR AT 88 3-4 IN DEALS ON EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 16.—The Canadian dollar gained ¼ cent at 3 o'clock this afternoon from its opening price of 88½ cents in local foreign exchanges deals to-day. It sold for 88¾ cents, ⅜ of a cent higher than yesterday's close.

The pound sterling was quoted at $3.86½ for cable transfers, 1¼ cents higher than the noon figure.

CARDIFF POLICE USE CLUBS TO DISPERSE MOB

Several Men Sent to Hospitals in Welsh City After Outbreak of Jobless

Canadian Press

Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 16.—Three thousand jobless men gathered in the public square here to-day to protest cuts in the dole, and there was vicious fighting when police with drawn clubs directed the mob to disperse.

The gathering was held against police orders.

When it was over several were in hospitals with broken heads, half a dozen of the leaders were arrested and the police had seized a red banner.

The crowd became unruly when communist speakers began their exhortations from soap-box platforms. One group tried to force its way through a cordon at the edge of the crowd and the fight began.

BRUENING WINS IN REICHSTAG

In Spite of Hitler's Opposition, German Chancellor Gets Vote of Confidence

Canadian Press

Berlin, Oct. 16.—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening won a vote of confidence from the Reichstag this afternoon, again turning back the threat of Adolf Hitler's Nationalist opposition.

The margin of victory was twenty-four votes, considerably larger than the Chancellor's backers had hoped for. It was the Economic Party, with its twenty members, which tipped the scale in Dr. Bruening's favor.

The Chancellor himself said nothing when the vote was announced at 294 to 270.

GROENER SMILES

General Wilhelm Groener, quartermaster-general in the army a dozen years ago and now Minister of Defence and the Interior, sat back and smiled. A few minutes later his smile broadened as the Reichstag voted confidence in him by 321 to 233.

The final blow to the opposition was delivered when a Communist motion to dissolve the Reichstag was defeated by 320 to 252.

OPPOSITION COMBINES

Thus, by a margin of twenty-four votes the Chancellor turned back once again the threat of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists who had combined this time with the National party, headed by Alfred Hugenberg.

These two, who have been the government's most bitter enemies since it took office, combined forces after the recent overturn in the Bruening cabinet and recently at a joint meeting in Harzburg served notice of their intention to throw the Chancellor out of office if they could.

When the Reichstag convened this morning the government was sure of 243 votes and thought it could pick up enough fro mthe smaller parties to give it a margin of at least one ballot.

Then the Economic Party announced it would swing its support to the Chancellor.

When the vote was taken there were three abstentions.

League Council Debates Manchuria Problem With Delegate of U.S. Present

Representatives of Nations Firmly Adhere to Plan of Seeking Settlement of Japanese-Chinese Dispute

Canadian Press

Geneva, Oct. 16.—Prentiss B. Gilbert, United States consul-general here and observer at the deliberations of the League of Nations Council, received this evening from Washington his government's affirmative reply to the Council's invitation to participate in consideration of the Manchurian problem.

Whn the council convened tonight for discussion of the Sino-Japanese conflict, Mr. Gilbert had a place at the table.

Washington, Oct. 16.—The United States to-day accepted an invitation to sit with the League of Nations Council in an effort to prevent war in Manchuria.

The formal invitation, pointing out the Kellogg-Briand pact to renounce war, probably would figure prominently, in the League's efforts to conciliate the grievances between Japan and China, was received at the State Department.

EDISON'S PULSE GROWS WEAKER SAYS PHYSICIAN

Aged Patient Lies in Coma in His Home at West Orange, N.J.

West Orange, N.J., Oct. 16.—The pulse of Thomas A. Edison, who is lying in a coma from which he no longer momentarily rouses, was becoming weaker to-day.

"Mr. Edison is in a deep, quiet sleep," Dr. Hubert S. Howe reported to-day. "His pulse is becoming weaker, but it is not yet at a critical point."

Dr. Howe said the aged inventor was still comatose.

"The extent of the coma has not been determined," he explained, "because no effort has been made to arouse him in two days."

Dr. Howe said Mr. Edison's long fast continued and that in the last twenty-four hours, as for several preceding days, he had taken no nourishment.

POPPY CROSS FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Big Community Tribute to Be Placed in Front of War Memorial November 7

A community poppy cross which will be made by the general public will feature Poppy Day, Saturday, November 7. The frame, which will be fashioned in the Red Cross Workshop, will consist of the Cross of Remembrance on a white background.

The cross will be made of felt and citizens will be afforded an opportunity to fill the space with the crimson flowers, forming a Cross of Remembrance with replicas of Flanders' poppies. The cross will be placed at the foot of the War Memorial during the memorial service on Remembrance Day, and will represent a united tribute of the public to the men who served and died, and to the work of the Red Cross, which still goes on wherever suffering, danger and disaster exist.

A similar plan was adopted at the Armistice Memorial service in London, England, last year, and received the fullest support. Mrs. Mortimer Appleby and the Navy League Chapter, I.O.D.E., will be in charge of this work.

The general campaign for subscriptions will commence Tuesday, October 27, following a meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Monday, October 26. A thorough canvass of the city and adjoining municipalities is contemplated. The churches will be appealed to for active support, and service clubs will be asked to feature Poppy Day and its significance at club luncheons during the week of November 7.

PLENTY OF WIND IS PREDICTED FOR ATLANTIC SCHOONER RACE

Canadian Press

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 16.—Heavy fog to-day blanketed the course where two white-sailed Grand Bankers are scheduled to battle for supremacy of the North Atlantic. The forecast is for "dirty weather" to-morrow, when the first of the race series is slated to be held.

The Bluenose, Canadian holder of the International Trophy, and Gertrude L. Thebaud, United States challenger, were riding the swell at their docks to-day, undergoing a final grooming before the opening gun at 9 a.m. to-morrow. Two confident skippers were looking over their charges with apparent satisfaction.

"Give us a wind along with the dirty weather and Bluenose will do what we want her to do," declared the wiry Captain Angus Walters to-day. "She is not quite the racer she was when we won the tankard, but she is OK."

Captain Ben Pine was not discussing the chances of the Thebaud to repeat her performance of last year, when she trimmed Bluenose off Gloucester in a Lipton Cup race with no title at stake, but he expressed confidence in his ship and crew of veteran fishermen.

CENTENARIAN OF VANCOUVER ASKS FOR OLD AGE PENSION

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Charles "Dad" Quick, 111-year-old saddleworker of Vancouver, one of the oldest citizens of Canada, will submit an application for an old age pension this year.

The barrier which prevented him from receiving a pension years ago was that he had not been a resident of British Columbia twenty years. It is two decades ago this month since the energetic old man left California for Vancouver.

Asked if he would close his shop at 1549 Powell Street on receiving his pension, Mr. Quick promptly replied that his one-man factory would remain open as long as he was able to look after it.

"Depression has hit the saddle-making industry as well as everything else," the centenarian remarked," and trade is not so brisk as it used to be."

He recently shipped six saddles to England and a similar number to Australia.

"Dad" contracted influenza six weeks ago and has been indisposed since. He hopes to be able to-morrow to enjoy a birthday party, which is being sponsored by the Cornwall, Devon and Somerset Association of Vancouver, of which he is a member. He will be 111 years old on October 22.

COUNTRIES CALL HOME GOLD STORE IN THE UNITED STATES

Washington, Oct. 16.—In exactly four weeks the United States has lost half a billion dollars of its enormous monetary gold stock.

On September 16 the Federal Reserve Bank had a stock of $5,051,000,000. At the close of business yesterday the total was $4,424,000,000, it was disclosed to-day.

Most of the gold has gone to Europe. Officials said the transfers were made by European central banks recalling metal that had been stored in the United States.

Abandonment of the gold standard in some countries, it was added, led financial interests abroad to feel the best place for their hoards was in their own vaults.

Besides this explanation, no special significance was attached to the movement. The loss in the week ended October 14 totaled $218,000,000.

Island Teachers Meet At Nanaimo

Ira Dilworth, Principal of Victoria High School, Addresses Delegates to Central Island Teachers' Institute Convention, Dealing With Social, Political and Economic Ills and Education's Part in Their Solution; Convention Will Close To-morrow

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, Oct. 16.—Mayor G. A. B. Hall welcomed delegates to the Central Island Teachers' Institute convention here yesterday evening. John Shaw, chairman of the school board, and George Pearson, M.P.P., gave addresses.

School children, under Miss Elsie Pearson, sang a group of songs.

Ira Dilworth, principal of the Victoria High School, spoke on the subject, "In Times Like These." He said in part: "We find ourselves confronted with difficulties on every hand and circumstances, social, political and economic, which seem impossible of solution, and one is discouraged and saddened by the spectacle. It is well for us to be honest. The world is full of beauty and loveliness. There is no need for cheap cynicism, which we find so often to-day. Cynicism burrows into the mind of man like dry rot, taking sap out of life. What we need most is not so much new methods but a new attitude on the part of the teacher, which will be beneficial to the child. We should avoid cheap, dowdy attractions, which produce a momentary 'kick.' Greater joy can be obtained from culture which means disciplining one's self to the point where one can, in turn, discipline some corner of the world, some aspect of human life."

RUSSIAN EXPERIMENT

The speaker referred to Russian experiment, quoting from "New Russia's Primer" to show that the Russians realize how important that part of their democratic programme shall seek to develop human culture.

"We seek to change nature, alter physical environment, but are slow to alter ourselves," he said. "This is a task of education which teachers and parents must face together. Children must be convinced of essential rightness of life. It is a big task demanding patience and courage. Education is the only force to undertake the task."

The convention will be continued to-day and to-morrow.

To-day the convention turned to business of a technical nature. Harry Charlesworth and J. E. Brown, both of Vancouver, addressed the delegates. Later in the day the delegates discussed problems especially related to school teaching and management.

The intermediate and senior grade sections attended a display of physical training work by classes under the direction of Miss Lily Piper and Jack Fouracre, after which they visited an art display arranged by O. Wardill. The junior grades' section participated in a discussion led by Inspector Fraser on "Matters of Practical Interest in the Teaching of Fundamentals."

This evening the teachers and guests will be entertained at a dinner at the Malaspina Hotel, where the principal speakers will be Mr. Dilworth and Dr. G. K. McNaughton of Cumberland.

could be downed only by a major calamity, he said. He came from that pioneer stock that did not knuckle under. Even in the areas where there had been two years of drought, recent rains had raised not only a crop of feed, but a spirit of optimism.

On the whole, he continued, too much had been heard about drought and too little about the good crops in many sections of the prairies.

Improved conditions in the livestock markets, reduced farm operating costs and the trend towards diversified farming, are all hopeful portents, in the opinion of Mr. Stillman.

The president of the Imperial Oil Company was accompanied west from Toronto by L. C. McCloskey, director in charge of manufacturing for the Imperial Oil, and Charles Leaver, general manager of the company's refineries.

Mr. Stillman has been president of the Imperial Oil Company since 1919. He is a native of Cleveland, Ohio, and after his college days worked under his father, the late Charles Darrow Stillman, with the Standard Oil Company at Bayonne, N.J. He was placed in various departments for the purpose of learning the business, and in 1890 became superintendent of the Standard Oil plant in Buffalo. In 1897 he was transferred to Sarnia, Ont., as superintendent of the Bushnell Company Limited, and was placed in charge of the construction of its plant there. He became director and superintendent of the Imperial Oil Company Limited of Sarnia, Ont., in 1899, general superintendent in 1901, assistant general manager in 1910, vice-president in 1911 and in April, 1919, was made president.

Mr. Stillman is president of the Imperial Pipe Line Company Limited and a director of the Dominion Bank.

NO BILL IN DAI THOMAS COURT CASE

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—No bill was returned by the grand jury here to-day to an indictment charging Dai Thomas and Frederick Rivers with conspiracy to defraud.

The two, of whom Thomas is a well-known city broker and a former British international rugby player, were charged with conspiring between August 7, 1930, and July 1, 1931, to defraud Mrs. Agnes Marriott, Vancouver, of $1,300.

Thomas was arrested on August 13, and Rivers on September 11.

The indictment was handed to the grand jury by Mr. Justice Gregory in the Assize Court this morning. The judge made little comment other than an explanation of the law relating to conspiracy.

FINES INQUIRY IN VANCOUVER NEXT MONDAY

City Council Committee to Resume Its Police Court Investigation Then

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Persistent efforts to ascertain who cashed a $150 provincial cheque payable to the Vancouver City Police Court clerk, endorsed by Earl E. Robinson, suspended court clerk, and cashed at the Cordova Street branch of the Bank of Montreal in December, 1925, featured the opening session of the city council's select committee of inquiry into accounts of the court clerk's office yesterday afternoon.

The cheque, a provincial certificate, represented a fine paid in the case of P. Tracey. Robinson said he had endorsed the cheque on request of W. H. C. Firkins, then cashier, and now deputy clerk, recently suspended. Firkins, he said, had told him the office was "short of change," and he had endorsed the cheque and it was sent to the bank to obtain currency. There was no record, however, of the cheque having being entered in the cash book.

DENIAL RECORDED

Firkins, on the stand, denied he had cashed the cheque, could not remember the circumstances described by Robinson, and stated he was "positive they never occurred while he was handling cash."

Another mystery which confronted the select committee was lack of any entry for a fine on June 13, 1921, for $1,000 in the case of J. J. Wing under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act.

Robinson said he thought the fine had been paid in cash and given by him to John T. Jessup, then cashier, but who, on August 22, 1922, left the station with, according to Robinson, one day's receipts. A warrant for Jessup's arrest had been issued for some time, said the suspended department head.

At the same time, Corporation Counsel G. E. McCrossan, K.C., who, with Deputy Comptroller Walter Wardhaugh, is conducting the examination, produced documents showing Robinson had notified the city comptroller to pay $500 to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as a moiety in the Wing case.

POSSIBLY STOLEN

Asked for an explanation of the omission, to list the Wing cheque of $1,000, Robinson stated it "must have been stolen."

The witness, under examination by Gordin Wismer, his counsel, categorically denied appropriating any city money or using any city funds for his own purposes. On the other hand, he said he had written the city comptroller in 1929 suggesting a cashier's cage be installed in his department and that one man should be placed solely in charge of cash.

LIST OF CHEQUES

Other cases for which the committee sought explanations were:

March 20, 1928, cheque for $300 in Theresa Corsi case, not entered in cash book

July 27, 1928, cheque for $300 in Alex. Mabile case. Not entered in cash book.

December 16, 1930, cheques for $325 in Shilman and Walker cases. Not entered in cash book.

November 15, 1929, cheque for $270 in case of twenty-seven Chinese. Not entered in cash records, and on November 18, distress warrants issued in these cases.

December 22, 1920, cheque for $300 in Patrick White case. Not shown in records.

February 22, 1922, cheque for $50 in A. J. Nesbitt case. Not entered in cash book.

In the course of examination Mr. McCrossan remarked approximately $10,000 was involved in the accounts for which the select committee desired explanations. He added that in one year records showed receipts of 110 Oakalla cheques, and in another year only one, and another year one.

Earl E. Robinson denied he had taken any money.

The inquiry was adjourned until next Monday.

Findings of the senate committee, led by Senator Nye of North Dakota, promoted the grand jury action.

The committee also was given evidence that former Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen of New Jersey contributed $10,000. No accounting was made of that sum in the bishop's reports.

ON TEN COUNTS

The bishop and Miss Burroughs, whose home is in Richmond, Virginia, were indicted on ten counts.

Pending the fixing of a date for trial, counsel prepared to arrange bond for the bishop and Miss Burroughs. Bond was placed at $1,000 each. If convicted the two are liable to fines of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment for not more than two years.

NO STATEMENT YET

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 16—Bishop James Cannon Jr. was attending an executive meeting of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, here to-day when news of his indictment reached Atlanta.

Inquiries at the conference room brought the response that "Bishop Cannon will not be disturbed or answer any inquiries until the meeting is over."

"I expect to be indicted because of the Roman Catholic district attorney at Washington," he said yesterday evening. "He would not permit me to appear before the grand jury and called only one of four witnesses I suggested. They expect to muzzle me and hope to destroy my influence that way."

POUND PARTY AT CHILDREN'S AID

The Children's Aid Home hopes for a generous response to its annual pound party which is to be held at the institution, 1234 Pandora Avenue, to-morrow afternoon. Visitors will be shown round the Home, and will be able to ask questions concerning the work which is being done there. Contributions are urgently needed this year, due to an unusually large number of children who have come under the care of the city.

Prentiss Gilbert, in Geneva, already had been authorized to accept the invitation.

KELLOGG TREATY

The invitation to this government said the opinion had been expressed before the Council "that the very important question before the Council concerns the fulfillment of obligations arising not only from the covenant of the League of Nations but also from the Pact of Paris (Kellogg-Briand Treaty).

"This opinion is certainly well-founded since, in accordance with Article 2 of that pact, 'the high contracting powers agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means.'

"Foremost among the signatories of the Pact of Paris appears the United States of America."

FORMAL RATIFICATION

Geneva, Oct. 16.—The Council of the League of Nations formally ratified over the objections of the Japanese delegate to-day its invitation to the United States to engage in arbitration of the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Chairman Aristide Briand, in summarizing the Council's decision, said the objections of a constitutional and juridical nature remained in reserve.

The Council again over-ruled by a vote of thirteen to one the Japanese delegate's objections and declared the question was purely one of procedure, requiring only a majority vote. It was made clear the United States representative would not have a vote on the merits of China's appeal.

Supporting the invitation were the delegates of Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Poland, Spain, Norway, China, Peru, Ireland, Jugoslavia, Guatemala and Panama. Only Japan voted against it.

PROOF OF STRENGTH

International observers regarded the Council's action despite Japan's determined stand as evidence of the League's vigor and a good omen for the ultimate happy settlement of the Manchurian affair. The Council awaited a reply from Washington and expressed hope that Prentiss S. Gilbert, United States Consul-General here, soon would assume his place at the conference table.

(Mr. Gilbert had a seat at the table when the Council met later in an evening session).

M. YOSHIZAWA'S ARGUMENT

M. Yoshizawa had contended the question of United States participation in the discussions was a matter of substance rather than procedure and as such required a unanimous vote for adoption. He disclaimed any political motive and bespoke his nation's friendship for the United States.

Japan must hold to its objections, he said, "at least until the doubt it has expressed be removed." His expression was interpreted by some observers as tantamount to a withdrawal of the Japanese opposition.

LORD READING'S APPEAL

Lord Reading, Great Britain's representative, appealed to the Japanese spokesman not to maintain the stand which he said he presented with such "persistence, emphasis and ability." He pleaded for unanimity in voting the United States "to assist in meeting successfully the greatest test the League has faced and in avoiding developments which might lead to grave developments for the world."

"We are not asking a non-member to become a member of the League," he said. "That would indeed require unanimity."

ALL INFORMATION NEEDED

Supporting the British delegate's view, M. Briand declared it was the Council's right in a grave crisis to arm itself with all the information possible from every source. He complimented M. Yoshizawa on his "vigor and persistency."

The Japanese smiled wanly and thanked the chairman, but said he was unable to modify his position.

The Polish delegate said his affirmative vote would fully reserve the constitutional question raised by Japan.

The German representative appealed to both sides to be moderate and to assist the League's work.

NO WAR DECLARATION

Tokio, Oct. 16.—Asserting that "Japan has absolutely no intention of declaring war on China," a spokesman for the Tokio government to-day explained his country's attitude in making an issue of efforts to invoke the Kellogg-Briand Pact at Geneva.

The spokesman said Japan's attitude was in no way directed at the United States itself and reiterated the contention the Kellogg Pact applied to a situation involving war or danger of war.

It was made clear one of Japan's objections to United States participation in the Geneva conference, seeking to settle peacefully the dispute between China and Japan in Manchuria, was the belief such would have a tendency to detract from the possibilities of China's refusal to enter into direct negotiations with the Tokio government for a settlement, and therefore might only delay a solution.

AMATEUR SLEUTH TRICKS SLAYER

confessed the various crimes charged to him, police said.

In a telephone conversation with local police to-day, the sheriff at Seattle announced he would send deputies to Los Angeles immediately for the return of Lindsay to Seattle to face the murder charge there. Requisition papers, however, were to be ordered in event Lindsay should change his mind about waiving extradition, it was said.

AMATEUR DETECTIVE

Behind the arrest of Lindsay is the story of Sanborn's methodical detective work. Sanborn first met Lindsay six months ago while operating a restaurant. Lindsay was his cook. A short time later Lindsay left Sanborn's employ, the latter not then having an inkling Lindsay was a man with a $3,000 reward on his head.

In the meantime, Sanborn started reading detective magazines and noticed a story about the notorious Seattle Lindsay, which detailed the man's personal habits. He readily recognized the same traits in the man who had been in his employ.

Before giving his information to police, Sanborn went about getting further evidence. He renewed his acquaintance with the suspect and finally tricked him into leaving his fingerprints on a postal card. These confirmed his suspicions when taken to police.

WIFE'S DISAPPEARANCE

Lindsay is charged with murdering his wife, the former Audrey Elizabeth Reid, in Seattle. The body was found in a shallow grave April 29, 1930. She had disappeared on April 19, and when friends inquired for her, Lindsay reported she had gone to Canada.

Shortly after his wife's disappearance, Lindsay disappeared with his foster daughter, a minor. She was later found in an Oakland boarding house and told of indignities she had suffered at her stepfather's hands. Her story aroused authorities throughout the Coast.

Last September Lindsay brought an eleven-year-old girl from Napa, Calif., to Los Angeles. She told a revolting story. An intensive search for the man was conducted here and numerous crimes were attributed to him.

Lindsay was also wanted for the murder of a farmer near Woodland, Wash., ten years ago.

RELIEF PLANS FOR U.S. URGED BY LABOR CHIEFS

American Federation Convention at Vancouver Ends and Delegates Return Home

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Labor handed an officially approved unemployment relief programme to the United States to-day and went home to put its ideas into practice.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who said he also represented the "voiceless millions who are unorganized," stood pledged to "go to Congress if necessary and demand appropriations to relieve every hungry man, woman and child in the country" if the nation failed to aid the unemployed adequately in other ways.

Before adjourning yesterday evening the delegates, united behind their officers and executive council, approved what was described as "the first definite plan evolved" and it was announced the executive would move definitely into the fields of industry, economics and politics to relieve depression.

CHIEF PROPOSALS

Here are the chief points in Labor's programme for the United States:

Maintenance of the U.S. wage standard, to keep up purchasing power.

Shorter working hours, on the ground that industry should share the benefits of the machine age with labor and because machines have slashed down the number of jobs.

Prohibition of child labor, so that parents and others with dependents may have available jobs.

National planning to balance production and consumption.

Employers to take on more workers, the idea being that industrial leaders, like ship captains, should take responsibility on their own shoulders, should be the last to leave sinking ships, and should "care for their men as a father cares for his children."

Creation of work through public building and construction, on the theory the nation is obligated to look to the welfare of all its citizens, although the convention voted down emphatically proposals for an unemployment insurance or dole system.

Strengthening of employment agencies; equitable distribution of all work; more even distribution of wealth through taxation in the higher brackets and stimulation of industry in the republic by resumption of brewing of mild beer.

Besides these salient points, the federation approved a detailed system for relief, divided into temporary and permanent aid. Relief through public appropriations and private funds was the outstanding suggestion for immediate aid.

Cosmic Rays Are Topics of Scientists

Rome, Oct. 16.—Myriads of cosmic rays pour down on the earth from distances hundreds of millions of miles farther away than the sun, each ray carrying energy of 786,000,000 volts, four distinguished scientists reported here yesterday.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. Arthur Compton, scientists from the United States, and Professor Bruno Possi of the University of Florence reported on the rays to the congress of physicists meeting here. Madame Curie, co-inventor of radium, corroborated their statements.

Millikan and Compton told the congress that experiments conducted during the summer had disproved theories that such rays proceeded either from within the earth's atmosphere or from the sun or visible stars. The place of origin, they said, was in the stellar regions unknown even to astronomers.

Thus far, the scientists said, the experiments had been in the field of pure science. When utilitarian science turned to take a hand in the research, they indicated, the tremendous energy contained in the cosmic rays might be harnessed and converted to man's use.

New Gold Rush Starts In East

Sudbury, Oct. 16.—More than 100 claims have been staked in Swayze Township, where recently a spectacular gold strike was reported, according to late arrivals from the field. A rush of major proportions is expected in the Ridout-Gogama area within the next few weeks. There is free gold in some of the outcrops, it is said.

LLOYD GEORGE OPPOSES PLANS TO TAX FOOD

Liberal Leader Urges British to Avoid Electing High-Tariff Conservatives

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 16.—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George points to the United States as a country in which high tariffs have not spelled prosperity.

The veteran Liberal leader, advising his followers to vote October 27 for free trade Labor candidates in preference to "food taxing" Conservatives if there is no alternative, said in a radio address yesterday evening:

"To insure that their natural and accumulated wealth should be enjoyed by their own citizens alone, they (United States) are building up the highest tariff wall in the world.

"Yet there is more actual privation in one United States city than in the whole of Great Britain.

"The spectre of bankruptcy is stalking through the rich country whose streets two years ago seemed paved with gold. This year there will be a deficit of £300,000,000 in the federal budget."

Mr. Lloyd George declared tariff barriers constituted one of the main causes of the slump in world trade. Despite tariffs Germany, for instance, was experiencing the worst trade depression it had ever known.

If the choice was between a "food taxing Tory" and a free trade Labor man, Mr. Lloyd George said he would have no hesitation. He would vote to avert the calamity of protection.

Election Message In Britain By Cardinal Bourne

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 16.—Cardinal Bourne has issued a message pointing out that in the present general election he has abstained from calling the attention of his fellow-countrymen to the "iniquitious conditions" affecting church and day schools, not because his opinion has in any way changed, or the claims of those schools have in any degree lessened, but "on account of our conviction that nothing should be allowed to distract the electors from the great issues confronting our country."

"For this reason," the cardinal's message continued, "we address to-day to all our Catholic people of England and Wales a united and most earnest appeal that they give themselves with renewed fervour and confidence to the daily supplication for public needs in this anxious time."

HIGHWAY WORK

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—Employment of 1,000 jobless men from Winnipeg on the Ontario section of the Transcanada Highway between Kenora and the head of the Great Lakes is under discussion between the Ontario and Manitoba Governments and Senator G. D. Robertson, federal Minister of Labor. Under the proposed arrangement Manitoba would contribute toward the wages of workers taken from this province.

NEW STUDY OF WHEAT QUOTA FOR BRITAIN

Suggestions Made By Committee Appointed to Explore the Field

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 16.—Great impetus to the movement for guaranteeing Empire producers a greater share of the British market as against foreign producers is given in an authoritative report issued to-day. It comes from a joint committee of the Central Chamber of Commerce and the Empire Economic Union and has the endorsement of the Federation of British Industries.

The main conclusion is the British Government need not await another Imperial Conference nor complete negotiations with the Dominions before going ahead with some sort of a quota scheme guaranteeing a fixed price to the domestic producers as well as giving the Empire producers a fixed share of the British market.

"Regarding products we can produce in Britain, but not sufficient to meet our whole demands," the report says, "it must be left to the government to decide how far we should act on our own initiative without waiting to negotiate with the Dominions and how far assistance to our agriculture can be held up pending a Dominion conference. But in many instances the advantages given in return might justify a more substantial measure of protection against the foreigner and a greater measure of preference to the Empire producer than would otherwise be contemplated.

ADVISORY COUNCIL

The report suggests the minimum quantity of home-grown wheat of milling quality to be converted into flour in the United Kingdom should be fixed annually by the president of the Board of Trade, acting in co-operation with a wheat advisory council. The guaranteed price to be paid by the millers for home-grown wheat of good milling quality would be similarly prescribed. The millers would receive a refund from the Treasury based on the difference between the guaranteed price to the domestic farmer and the ruling world price, calculated on the basis of relative prices of British wheat and foreign wheat of comparable quality over a period of five years.

"It is contemplated that a reasonably high duty on foreign flour, for instance 33 per cent ad valorem, with free Empire entry up to a maximum total to be agreed on, normally would be sufficient to prevent the scheme from being interfered with by the excessive importation of flour," the report declares.

"The machinery set up for the administration of the quota system for home-grown wheat might also lend itself to the adoption of a quota system though without any guarantee of price for Empire wheat," the report concludes.

GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO SCORED BY HEPBURN

Liberal Leader Says Henry Cabinet Not Displaying Courage

Canadian Press

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 16.—Voicing his refusal to co-operate with the Henry government of Ontario, a Conservative ministry, or to cease for a moment political warfare, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P. for West Elgin and Ontario Liberal leader, yesterday evening termed the government of Ontario "cowardly."

Addressing the annual meeting of the North Oxford Reform Association, the Liberal chieftain replied to the speech in Aylmer Wednesday evening of Hon. William H. Price, Attorney-General, in which he pleaded for the support of constituted authority in these troublous times and invited the co-operation of all citizens.

"We are going to fight against this autocratic government at Toronto," said Mr. Hepburn. "We have turned the searchlight on publicity on the maladministration of the Ontario government and they have become frightened and are crying quits. I think that is a cowardly attitude. Let them come out and defend themselves as best they can."

UNION CABINET IS ADVOCATED IN ALBERTA

Canadian Press

Calgary, Oct. 16—A union government in Alberta, similar to the administration in Great Britain, was proposed by W. M. Davidson, pioneer Alberta editor, in an address to the Alberta division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, in convention here.

Mr. Davidson urged formation of such a government to solve the problems of the recently-announced provincial government deficit and relief difficulties. He said he was convinced this plan was favored by a majority of the people in Alberta.

SCHOOL STATISTICS

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Schools and colleges of Canada teach, roughly, one-quarter of the country's population and are attended by 2,490,623 pupils, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Each pupil involves an annual expenditure of approximately $66. Teachers totaling 8,144 supervise the educational requirements of "Canada Junior."

Oil Magnate Sees No Need For Pessimism

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Vancouver and British Columbia are no places for pessimism in the opinion of C. O. Stillman, president of Imperial Oil Limited, who is in the city in the course of his annual business trip to the west.

Only the other day, he stated in an interview, he had seen figures which, in his opinion, held out much hope for the future of the province. These indicated that British Columbia had the highest per capita income of any Canadian province, and that it ranks third in total effective income. This, he said, suggested purchasing power which depression could not withstand.

"I am very much impressed, Mr. Stillman said, "by the fact that in the face of the distressed condition of the base metal markets, British Columbia has been able to keep production to a point not far below the record levels of 1929 and 1930. This is due to skilful operation and to the great natural advantages that British Columbia metal industries have over most of their competitors."

HATT'S HARDWARE

LESS DRINKING WATER FOR THOSE WITH HEAD HURTS

New York, Oct. 16.—How restriction of drinking water is saving victims of head and brain injuries from feeblemindedness and death was reported to the American College of Surgeons by Dr. Temple Fay here yesterday.

Tried on 231 persons in the last two years, the "drink restriction" had resulted in a 15 per cent decrease in the death rate, he said. Injured persons who formerly were unable to return to work for a year or more had been restored to their jobs in three months.

Reduction of water, Dr. Fay explained, reduces the pressure on the brain which comes from head injuries. Reducing the pressure often relieves the necessity for serious surgical operations.

The new treatment reveals, Dr. Fay added, that there are occasions when even the satisfaction of the well-known craving of wounded for water may be injurious or even fatal.

CHICAGO POLICE HAVE BULLETS FOR BOMBERS

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Thirteen theatre bombings in recent weeks have led to an order of "shoot to kill" by Commissioner of Police James P. Allman and Mayor Anton Cermak.

Allman declined to answer when asked whether the police had machine guns planted at theatres affected by the owner-employee dispute.

THE NEXT GREAT TREK

EVERY MAJOR ECONOMIC DEPRESsion on this continent has produced an important movement of population from the older settled sections to newer areas, and in consequence a revival of colonization in a more or less extensive way. The economic tribulations of the United States east of the Mississippi in the forties, sixties and seventies of the last century forced the movement of home-seekers to the western territories. The covered waggon expeditions were the products of sheer necessity. The thousands who joined in these treks to the west had no roseate expectations of making their fortunes in terms of money; they were not interested in markets, stock quotations, dividends, politics or even wages. They were looking for home-sites where the soil chiefly would furnish them with the means of subsistence, and where they felt they would be happier and healthier than they could be in the east. From those various shifts of population, arising from economic stress in the older sections of the country, grew the extraordinary development of the American west, which in time assumed many aspects.

The settlement of western Canada followed a similar course. The recessions which marked the economic life of this country prior to 1896 impressed upon the Canadian government the necessity of opening up for settlement the undeveloped areas west of the Great Lakes. Immigration from Europe and the United States was encouraged, and home-seekers by the thousands poured into what are now the prairie provinces. All this gave a remarkable stimulus to Canada's progress. We have every reason to expect a similar movement of population on this continent as an outcome of present economic conditions; that is to say, a movement of people from the older settled districts where conditions have reached a state of discouragement bordering upon hopelessness, to fertile areas, now either unsettled at all or only sparsely settled, which promise at least comfortable subsistence.

Inevitably that movement for a large part must be to Canada, the greater portion of whose fertile areas remain undeveloped. Western Canada can comfortably accommodate many millions of home-seekers. Its virgin lands can be obtained cheaply, on terms within the reach of any thrifty, able-bodied settler who has the pioneering spirit and therefore is not afraid to work or to forego the attractions of city life. By this time grim necessity ought to have created a large army of people ready to strike out for such fresh pastures. Central British Columbia, the Peace River Country, large parts of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba offer advantages for pioneer colonization which exist nowhere else on the continent, and the governments of Canada and the provinces should do everything within their power to assist this development.

To assume that progress on this continent has ended with the settlement of the United States and the narrow strip of country in Canada for a few miles north of the international boundary line, is to imply that we have reached the end of all things; that human initiative, adaptability, enterprise and courage, not to speak of human intelligence, have become stagnant; that progress no longer depends upon the combination of work with primary resources, but upon the fortunes of a few people in St. James Street or Wall Street. As a matter of fact, the people who developed western United States and western Canada for a large part never heard of Wall Street or St. James Street. Nor did they concern themselves with questions affecting hours and division of labor and working conditions. They were too busy home-building.

Regardless of present economic conditions, Canada's great need is comprehensive and intensive colonization, and now is the time when the foundation for meeting this need should be laid. Our existing industrial structure needs several times our present population for its proper support. If we had a statesman with the vision, energy and courage of the late Sir Clifford Sifton, for example, we would now be forming far-reaching plans for the settlement of our unoccupied spaces in connection with the population shift which, as surely as the sun rises, will develop out of the present economic lapse, as a matter of stark urgency.

THE GOD OF EXCLUSIVENESS

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT'S ATTItude towards the products of other countries with depreciated currencies, combined with its prohibitive tariff against imports of all kinds, whether of goods or ideas, is putting this Dominion in a position of isolation which already has had an ominous reaction upon its prospects. It is bitterly resented in Great Britain, our best customer. Now Italy, which buys from us several times as much as we sell to her, is going to adopt drastic reprisals. Is it any wonder that our foreign trade continues to drop steadily, to the detriment of our industrial organization?

Canada is not being governed on sound business principles to-day; in fact, it is not being governed on business principles of any kind. Its policy is inspired by sheer fanaticism, a sort of ecstatic vodoo worship of fiscal exclusiveness which has passed from the aspect of protection to one of positive hatred of everything which comes from abroad. This may be Mr. Bennett's means of propitiating Providence, which, he says, is using the whip of hard times to chastize a recreant world, but actually he is only adding another tail to the cat as far as Canada is concerned. As a matter of fact, the motives which inspire the Bennett economic attitude to the rest of the world form the very negation of Providential virtues, for the neglect of which, the Prime Minister inconsistently enough tells us, mankind is being punished.

LURE OF ADVENTURE

THE GOLD PROSPECTOR IS HITTING the trail again. In such famous old-time fields as those of British Columbia, California, Montana and the Yukon men are getting busy once more, panning the sand of lonely streams and repeating, in miniature, the scenes of the great gold rush days.

This, it seems, is not due to any new discoveries, but simply to the depression. Gold will buy more than it would a few years ago. The prospector who gets an ounce of fine dust can buy more supplies, equipment and luxuries with it than he could formerly.

None of these prospectors is getting rich. But a great many of them are making a comfortable living, and abandoned gold fields are looking lively. Indeed, in certain parts of Canada so many unemployed men from the cities are trying to turn prospector that the mounted police are beginning to turn them back, fearing that winter will bring too many hardships to ill-equipped and inexperienced gold-hunters.

Now there is not any especial reason why we stay-at-homes should be glad to hear about this revival of prospecting. We have never hunted for gold, and we never shall—nor would we know how to do it if we tried. But simply to know that men are wandering along empty mountain canyons, far away, looking for the magic metal, is somehow good for us.

We have to take our adventures by proxy, these days. No new gold strike, not even the most fabulous, could tear us away from the daily routine. Our horizons will always be just about what they are now. But we have dreams; we have imagination; and the prospectors who tramp the western and northern wildernesses are taking us with them, without knowing it. As long as they can go—as long as there is still gold to be found, and lonely country to provide adventure—we do not feel our imprisonment.

That is why stories about gold-seekers, explorers and the like will always have a sure appeal. Our own hopes died when we went into our 'teens and realized sadly that we would never become pirates or soldiers of fortune or bearded prospectors; but so long as other men can become those things we do not mind quite so much.

We do not get far from home, and we do not have high adventures. But somewhere, far away, the golden door is still open, if only a little. We can tell ourselves that we could if we would. That is enough.

A WELCOME OFFER

THE ANNOUNCEMENT FROM MR. Beatty and Sir Henry Thornton that the two railway companies are prepared to carry foodstuffs free to government-recognized relief organizations ought to result in the early collection of produce for which there does not seem to be any market and which in many cases has been left to rot. In the British Columbia dry belt, for instance, large quantities of unwanted tomatoes were ploughed into the ground recently.

It will not be enough merely to welcome this offer from the two railway executives. If something of practical value is to be achieved, it will be necessary for local relief organizations to take an early inventory of such foodstuffs as are available and arrange for their collection and transportation to a central dispatching point. There should be no conflict with the interests of merchants who are supplying the relief camps with the various commodities required, since such products, presumably, would constitute only a very small part of the fare of those on relief employment, but which would otherwise merely be completely wasted.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

A STUDY IN CONTRAST

The Richmond Times Democrat

It is all a matter of contrasts. The fetish worshippers of Africa kill through ignorance, superstition and distorted reasoning. Civilized people kill for greed, for love, for hate, for political power. In the last analysis, it is easier to forgive the savage slayer than the killer of an enlightened race. Civilization must progress far before it protects human life adequately, and that progress is needed as badly in New York, Chicago, Paris, and London as in the jungles of the "dark continent."

HIGH-PRESSURE SALES LADIES

The Edmonton Journal

There have been stories told of high-pressure salesmen, but not so many of high-pressure saleswomen. Housewives have told their husbands of some of their experiences in getting rid of book agents and similar canvassers at the door; but how many husbands have told their wives of the ladies who sometimes call on them at the office? This, then, is a drawing aside of the curtains of mystery many a man likes to hang before his business experiences. It will show the good wives that their husbands have distressing experiences too.

The other day a pretty young lady walked into the office where this is now being written.

"Are you the editor or something?"

"Well, something, at any rate."

"Would you like to do me a favor?" in soft and persuasive tones.

"That depends on what it is," cautiously.

Then was presented a list of magazines. A subscription was sought. Not for one year, oh dear me no—but for three.

Then the high-pressure stuff started. The lady had refused a seat; now she leaned over the intended victim's shoulder—to point out something on the circular, of course. But the gentle pressure on said shoulder was insistent and, might one say suggestive?

"You have lovely teeth, haven't you?" was the next move in the sales talk.

And so it went, this determined effort to break down sales resistance. In this case a twelve dollar touch for a three-year subscription to some United States magazine proved too much of a good thing It was the refuge behind which the victim was able to hold out, waving the Union Jack and declaring his preference for Made-in-Canada literature.

Bu the good wives may see now that they are not the only ones who have their troubles with canvassers and such like. The husband down town has his own little problems, which become acute when "high-pressure" salesmanship is demonstrated by smartly-dressed, good-looking young ladies.

Loose Ends

Mr. Beak exhausts his vegetable supplies—and propounds some dangerous theories—the need of philodendrists is explained—and an excellent example noted.

By H. B. W.

MR. ALEXANDER BEAK (who, when I last saw him, was in acute distress because he feared that the gold sovereign on his watch chain would lose its value as a result of England's departure from the gold standard) came over here just now, his own fiscal worries quite forgotten. Mr. Beak came over with a huge market basket and demanded some of my late fall vegetables, and this was curious, because Mr. Beak has a large vegetable garden of his own. That was how I come to find out that Mr. Beak has exhausted his own garden and begged vegetables from his neighbors in order to feed the hungry. Apparently gangs of men are working on the road in front of Mr. Beak's place of unemployment relief and some of them are in a pretty bad way. One day Mr. Beak discovered one of them who had brought nothing for his lunch but some cooked potato peelings, and another fellow had started the day without any breakfast and no lunch at all.

THAT OPENED the eyes of Mr. Beak and made him grind his uppers and lowers together in deep cogitation. After consultation with the motherly Mrs. Beak, he brought out a tremendous lunch for each of the men who needed it and from then on his charity, so far as I can find out from the neighbors, has never ceased. He has given his vegetables away, he has bought meat and given it away, he has begged fruit from his friends and given that away and, indeed, he has had time for little else. And you must remember that Mr. Beak is such a poor man that if everybody in this community gave in the same proportion to his means there would be no privation here at all. Anyway, I thought I ought to mention the oddities of Mr. Beak in case they might inspire someone somewhere to follow his example. The oddities of Mr. Beak, I think, make you realize that anybody in good circumstances who goes through this winter without sacrificing something to help somebody else has no right to remain in good circumstances at all. I have enough faith in natural justice to believe that he will not. Certainly he will never know the extraordinary satisfaction which Mr. Beak appears to have taken in the complete exhaustion of his winter vegetable supply before the winter has really started.

AND, BY THE WAY, Mr. Beak's views on unemployment, while somewhat crude, appeal to me as sound. Said Mr. Beak to me to-day, as he ground his uppers and lowers in that lateral fashion which indicates deep thought: "Y'know there's a lot of silly talk about these 'ere hunemployed. Just because there's some of 'em which ain't deserving — perfessional bums ye might say—just because of them, a lot of people 'as the idee that all of 'em is the same way. Well, sir, hif I thought that, I certainly would be a-worryth'. Here's the way I look at hit—with all the men that's out of work these days, hif most of 'em don't want to work, hif most of 'em is bums, then the whole breed of us ain't no good either. If so many men of our breed is no good it stands to reason that if the rest of us was in trouble we wouldn't want to work either.

IF," SAID MR. BEAK, "there was only a few fellers in trouble, you might say it was their own fault, that they was no good. But when there's so many in trouble as there is now it's an hinsult to all of us, it's an hinsult to the 'ole blinkin' race of us to say they ain't no good. If that's true, then we're sunk. But I don't believe it. I believe we're still all right. An' you'll find," added Mr. Beak with a solemn click between the uppers and the lowers, "that them as says that the hunemployed don't want to work is usually the kind wot don't work a-tall theirselves and don't know anything about workin' men and don't want to. It's a easy excuse for 'em to say that workin' men don't want to work. It saves 'em doin' anythin' about it." With which revolutionary sentiment Mr. Beak went off with his basket to collect more vegetables down our road.

A VANCOUVER PAPER has lately been defining a "philanthropist" as a man who gives to charity with no thought of self whatever, not even the self-satisfaction and glow of honest righteousness which often accompanies charity. In the same way a "philodendrist" is a person who wants to save the trees of the countryside, not for the purpose of making lumber, not to make comfortable shade, not even because they are beautiful, but because he loves trees for themselves. What the Vancouver paper wants to know is whether there are any real "philodendrists" in British Columbia, people who not only love trees but are willing to do something about them without hope of reward. So far as I have been able to discover, the answer is in the negative.

NO DOUBT there are people who love trees and are troubled by the wanton destruction of our forests, but there are none, or not many, who are willing to do anything about it. The only person who has really done anything about it, so far as my knowledge goes, is a gentleman from the east who, having purchased some strips of virgin timber on this Island for posterity, deserves more thanks than any individual in our own population whom I can think of at the moment. He will not get it just now, but twenty-five years or so hence, when his strips of timber are the only virgin strips of timber left, he will be appreciated.

THE intriguing thing about our failure to do anything about preserving some of our timber is that the Americans of the whole Pacific slope, from California north, the Americans with their dense population and greater timber needs, the materialistic, money-grubbing, soulless Americans, have preserved huge areas of native forests for their descendants. In California much of the expense has been borne by public subscription, by poor Americans who, being materialistic, money-grubbing and soulless, thought it worth while to give a dollar each so that the giant redwoods might still live. In this country we appear to be above such a cold-blooded financial arrangement. Rather than sink to putting up some of our own money, we prefer to see the forests cut down.

THE STATE OF MARYLAND recently put a tax on all signboards erected along its roads. It is true that this levy did not produce a great deal of revenue, but it did something much more valuable. It caused 15,250 signboards to be torn down. I would recommend a similar plan to our provincial government but for the fact that anything I recommend is always certain to be rejected. Somebody else, with a greater influence in high places, might make such a recommendation and, perhaps, save a few miles of our highways from the hideous hoardings which are always placed directly in front of the best scenery. It seems to me that the owners of such signs display remarkably little intelligence, because if they continue to outrage the decencies of the landscape they will not be forced merely to pay a tax on their signs. They will be forced to remove them altogether. It takes a long time to make the public properly mad, but when you succeed you cannot calm it down again in a hurry either. If I were in business I would try to prevent it getting mad in the first place.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, OCTOBER 16, 1906

From The Times Files

The question of boulevarding, planting trees and otherwise improving public thoroughfares is not being dropped by the Victoria Tourist and Development Association by any means. A deputation waited upon the City Council at the regular meeting of the latter last evening and urged that a commission be appointed for a term of years so that this valuable work might be expeditiously achieved.

When seen this morning by a Times reporter Mayor Morley expressed some indignation over the attitude assumed by some of the aldermen, particularly Alderman Hall, in an address before the Board of Trade, in contending and reiterating that his proposal contemplated the expenditure of $300,000 upon improvements to the Elk Lake water system.

For some weeks past the work of measuring the waterfall in the Highland district in order to ascertain the extent of the supply to be depended upon in the event of that being made the permanent source, has been in progress. An expert will spend the winter months in that locality and each day will take the measurements at different points along the upper reaches of Mill Stream.

Details of the damage done by the big typhoon which struck Hongkong last month, doing great damage to shipping and property of the port, as announced in telegraphic dispatches already published, were received yesterday by the R.M.S. Empress of Japan. The Japan was in Hongkong at the time and only escaped injury through special precautions taken to prevent accident.

Weather Forecast — Victoria and vicinity: Moderate to fresh southerly and westerly winds, unsettled and mild with occasional rains.

Victoria has picked a strong team to meet the aggregation of rugby football players coming from the terminal city. The Vancouver boys are determined to avenge the defeat of their last match with Victoria, but the local players are quite confident. The personell of the team selected to represent Victoria fellows: Full-back, L. MacRae; three-quarters, A. Sargison, F. Anderson, W. Blackbourne and D. Thompson; half-backs, Newcombe and C. Bray; forwards, Barnacle, Meredith, Menzies, Benzen, L. Sweeney, Jeffs, Miller and Shanks; substitutes, Loat, Hillyard and Paterson.

B.C.E. MELON A LEMON?

To the Editor:—The B.C. Electric Co. is to be congratulated on the able and nimble minds at the head of their concern. They are very successfully handing themselves an increase in power rates and at the same time kidding the ever-gullible public into the belief they are getting a reduction. Some home-owners may get a reduction of a dime or so, but the majority will eventually pay more for a service that is high enough as it is.

The average size home in which an electric range is used would, under the 6c and 3c rate, pay considerably more. In my own case: Last month I used 127 k.w.h. This total was divided into 24 k.w.h. for house light and radio, and 103 k.w.h. for electric range. The bill was: 24 k.w.h. @ 6c, and 103 k.w.h. @ 3c (the present range rate), a total of $4.55. Under the new scheme the bill would have been 45 k.w.h. @ 6c, 82 k.w.h. @ 3c, total of $5.16 and an increase of 61c. (My home is classified as 1,500 sq. ft.).

So far, so good; for the company. Of course the B.C.E. says "You can have the old system if you want to." Will we be able to keep the old system when, say, just a few hundred houses are left in the city under the old system? Or will the B.C.E. arbitrarily order a cut over to the new system?

And what about the homes now being built in which electric ranges will be used. Or present non-users who decide to begin using an electric range. All these will pay on the new rate, as future installations will be single meter only.

Apparently this big generous offer of the B.C.E. is something different from what it appeared to be. The melon begins to look like a lemon.

UNBELIEVER.

WHO WAS TO BLAME?

To the Editor:—Through the courtesy of your letter column I would like to ask a question, namely: "Who was responsible for not broadcasting the speeches of the Vancouver speakers, Mr. Charles Lang and Mr. C. M. Woodsworth, who addressed a Conservative mass meeting in the Chamber of Commerce, Victoria, on September 28?

I had invited some friends to my home to listen in, only to find that we, and I presume thousands more, were fooled.

What is the rule concerning sudden cancellations of programmes of public interest, previously announced to be broadcast?

I am convinced that an unauthorized influence was brought to bear

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

Have you room enough in your bathroom for an extra medicine cabinet? If so, buy one and keep it for your own personal "beauty box." This is an excellent idea for women who live in small apartments which do not afford the luxury of a dressing-room or even a bedroom. Even if you have both bedrooms and dressing-rooms in you home, the light is usually better in the bathroom and it is more accessible to the water.

The cabinet should have three shelves. On the bottom one put the toilet articles you use most frequently —tooth brushes, tooth paste, mouth wash (which should be used night and morning), bath salts, hand lotion, and soap, unless you prefer to keep your soap in the regular soap dish.

On the second shelf put your cleansing cream, nourishing cream, powder base or vanishing cream, astringent, powder, rouge, lipstick, whatever makeup you use on your eyes, a nail file, and perhaps some boracic acid solution and an eye cup.

There will be plenty of room on the top shelf for your liquid shampoo, some face lotion, if you finger-wave your hair, and a complete manicure set. The manicure set should include plenty of orange sticks, cotton, emery boards, cuticle remover, polish —whether you use a dry or liquid polish is a matter of personal choice —and some nail white.

You may even want to comb your hair in front of this tiny little beauty shop of yours. If you do, then put your comb and a box of hairpins either on the top or bottom shelf. Never allow anything you use in or on your hair to remain near the powder jar. There is sure to be a certain amount of dust and nothing is worse for your hair than cosmetics of any description. By all means keep your hairbrush away from dust and dirt. It's a good idea to keep it in a box or a case made especially for it.

Of course you can add other cosmetics to your collection as long as you have room for them. Regular bath powder boxes are usually too large for the narrow shelves, so you'll have to take the powder out of the box in which you bought it and use it from a smaller one which can be filled from time to time as you need it. You should also find space for a jar filled with cotton pads with which to apply your powder and astringent. There is no place in your "cosmetic cabinet" for the old-fashioned powder puff which is used time after time, and which grinds dirt into the pores of your skin the second time.

Electric permanents are just a current fashion.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

I have some more don'ts for you. They could be made into do's, but in some way the don'ts seem to stick better in the adult mind.

Stubborness is a natural thing to the little four-year-old. He is setting up his own will against the whole world at this time, to establish in his own mind just where he stands. He tries to balk everyone and everything—but this balking is more to see what effect will be produced than to deliberately produce an effect. So with him stubborness is excusable. In a child of any other age it is not.

These don'ts are prescribed as follows: To be used twenty-four hours a day from your child's birth on.

Don't be over-demanding. If a mother or father makes a demand that is absolutely or very nearly impossible for his child to execute, he is usually going to see how unreasonable it is. Since he can't—he won't.

TACT IS NECESSARY

Don't be untactful. Very often children are looked on only as children. Their feelings and emotions are overlooked, hurt, and insulted. A little boy or girl who is held up as an ugly example very often will become silent and morose, consequently stubborn. In a less direct way, the same thing may result if another child is held up to be admired so often that inferiority-complex starts.

Don't be unjust, so that the child comes to believe that you are merely trying to thwart his desires and be mean on the whole. As soon as he gets this idea, he will believe that your orders are to be fought because they come from you, no matter what they may be.

Don't be too critical, expecting wonders of the child in every direction he is to carry out; on the other hand don't be weak, allowing him to do more or less as he wishes regardless of rule so that he feels he can have his own way if he holds out for it.

Colonial Motifs Used

The influence of the French Colonial Exposition, which has been running in Paris all summer, is felt in many new silk fabric designs which draw their inspiration from native designs of French colonies in Africa or Indo-China.

ENGLISH OPERAS WILL PLAY HERE

"The Beggar's Opera," Due Here in December, Is Now Playing in Montreal

"The Beggar's Opera" opened its Canadian tour in Montreal of this week and will cross Canada to open in Victoria at the Royal Victoria Theatre early in December. It will be a presentation of the English Light Opera Company, which talented company will also present "Merrie England" while in Canada. The company will open its local engagement December 7, and already music lovers of the city are looking forward to these two treats.

"The Beggar's Opera" is unique in the whole history of music.

It was originally intended as an antidote for the overladen meal of saccharine song and futile melodramas of the Italian school, and it acted very much as did George Douglas's devastating novel, "The House With the Green Shutters," on the Kailyard School of Scottish fiction, or Brinsley Macnamara's famous "Valley of the Squinting Windows" on the artificial fiction of the period.

DELICIOUS SATIRE

The plot is delicious satire, touched with supreme ironic climaxes. For the music Gay did not engage any composer, nor did he write himself. Instead, he went to the well of English music undefiled, and from that he drew the most famous folksongs, airs, melodies, choruses and what not—music the very origin of which was even then lost in the mists of bygone centuries, but which had lived down the years because of its undying qualities of melody, beauty and rhythm. To these tunes Gay wrote his ironic lyrics, and as the style was in each instance carefully modelled to suit the lilt of the music, the result was a perfect musical setting for the whole "book."

RETURNING

Anna Q. Nilsson, as she looks today after being out of films four years. She is getting ready to resume her career in the talkies.

A RECORD SHIPMENT

A new record for fall freight was set up last month when a carload of potted plants from a Vancouver grower shipped to the Dale Estate at Brampton, Ont., crossed the continent in nine days. The shipment marks an important new development in Canadian horticulture, as heretofore practically all potted plants were imported by the trade. There were about 14,000 plants in the shipment, which included an assorted variety of Phoenix, Rochelenii, Boston and Whitmanii ferns, some very fine large specimens of Kentia Palms, from ten to fifteen feet high, and Aspidistras.

Well-known Songs In "Robin Hood" To Be Presented Here

Victoria Operatic Society to Present Tuneful Vehicle at the Royal Next Month

"Robin Hood," the popular light opera from the pen of Reginald de Koven, will be presented by the Victoria Operatic Society at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Friday and Saturday evenings, November 27 and 28. It will be the third show put on by the society, "Boccaccio" and "Fra Diavolo" having been presented last spring.

Principals for "Robin Hood" are working two and three times each week on their roles and the chorus is also getting down to hard work on the lovely bit of melody and grandeur that fall to its lot. Such favorites as "Brown October Ale," "The Tinker's Song," "O Promise Me," "When a Maiden Marries," "The Armorer's Song," "It Takes Nine Tailors to Make a Man" and "I Am the Sheriff of Nottingham" will be sung. Fine scope is given by de Koven in his opera for the voices in the leading roles, and those chosen to play them in Victoria next month are among the most popular in the city. Much care is being given to detail by the director and when it is presented it will be a finished product.

The costumes are now being made, and because they are being designed to suit the period, they will be colorful and picturesque.

BETTER BALANCE OF AGRICULTURE IS ADVOCATED

Women's Institute Conference Hear Address By Deputy Minister J. B. Munro

An appeal to rural women to use their influence to secure a "better balanced agriculture" for British Columbia and to foster the greater consumption of B.C. products, was made by J. B. Munro, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, before the district conference of the South Vancouver Island women's institutes at their closing session yesterday afternoon. The speaker quoted figures to show that whereas British Columbia produced far less cattle and hogs than were needed in the home market, there was a surplus of fruit and vegetables, for which the farmers were unable to find a market, hence the suggestion for a better balanced agriculture.

AGRICULTURAL REPORT

Mr. Munro's address followed the report given by Mrs. Robson, convener of agriculture. She referred to the potato shows conducted by several institutes, to the boys' and girls' poultry clubs, to the participation in various fairs and exhibits and spoke of the steps taken in various communities towards the eradication of noxious weeds. Emphasis was laid upon the valuable work done in the growing of seed potatoes, particularly in regard to the participation of boys and girls in this work.

DEPUTY MINISTER SPEAKS

Mr. Munro commended the efforts of the institutes to start girls' and boys' poultry clubs. Altogether 100 of these clubs were in existence in the province, in addition to a number of swine clubs, which were doing splendid work. One B.C. boy headed the list of the judging competition held in Portland between 126 boys and girls from all parts of ten states. He commended the study of the agricultural statistics reports to the attention of the women's institutes, declaring that the women had shown more interest in figures than had the men.

The responsibility for dealing with the problem of disposing of British Columbia products rested largely with the women, who were responding splendidly to the appeal to patronize local products in preference to others, observed the speaker. While there was a surplus production of fruit and vegetables, yet British Columbia did not raise sufficient cattle, sheep and pigs to feed its population, and he advocated more attention being given to mixed farming. He declared that a better balanced agriculture would be of immeasurable benefit to the province.

Mr. Munro made a plea for the support of B.C. honey. To-day there are 3,000 beekeepers in the province who find it hard to secure a market for their 1,200,000 pounds of honey, yet British Columbia had imported 483,000 pounds of honey from Ontario during the year. He used this illustration to lend point to his appeal to the women to support the "Buy in B.C." campaign.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Mrs. James Watson presented the report of public health and child welfare, revealing what had been done by the various institutes along these lines.

The Othea Scott endowment fund to date amounts to $3,399.12, Mrs. A. P. Webster reported. Among the latest donations to this fund are: Tarrys and Thrums, $5.00; Grindrod, $5.00; Diamond Jubilee Chapter, I.O.D.E., Penticton, $70.00 (second contribution).

Mrs. V. S. MacLachlan spoke highly of the discussions in the Dominion Parliament relative to the establishment of public health units throughout Canada.

DUTIES OF CONVENERS

The duties of the various conveners of the standing committees were defined by Mrs. J. D. Gordon.

Mrs. Frank Campbell, provincial convener of legislation, appealed to the chair for a definition of her duties, and requested the superintendent to notify the institutes as to the personnel of the provincial standing committees and conveners, thus facilitating this work.

CONVENERS APPOINTED

Conveners of standing committees appointed were: Publicity and national events, Mrs. Heath, Luxton and Happy Valley; immigration, Mrs. Southin, Oyster Bay; League of Nations, Mrs. Kate Palmer, Victoria; community betterment, Mrs. Chambers, Cedar; agriculture, Mrs. T. C. Robson, Vimy; home economics, Mrs. M. A. Morrow, Luxton and Happy Valley; education and better schools, Mrs. Edwin Clark, Shirley; industries, Miss Savory, Lengford; legislation, Mrs. A. G. Moody, Lake Hill; public health and child welfare, Mrs. J. Watson, Royal Oak; institute work and method, Mrs. McDonald, Shawnigan.

The delegates and officials of the district board were the guests of the Esquimalt Women's Institute at luncheon at Spencer's private dining-room, between the morning and afternoon sessions.

Fairfield W.M.S. — The Fairfield United W.M.S. met yesterday, the Foul Bay Circle being in charge of the programme. Miss Bertha Hall introduced the new study book on Korea. Mrs. Hugh Nixon spoke on the subject of "Thanksgiving," and Mrs. Edward Dent gave a reading on the same subject. Miss Seale read one of her own compositions, "Life's Joyous Notes," and Master Billy Inglis sang a solo, accompanied at the paino by Miss Olive Campbell.

A pretty wedding ceremony was performed at the home of the Rev. Daniel Walker, 1133 Rockland Avenue, on Wednesday evening, the principals being Miss Paula Hess of Denmark and Mr. Peter Nordstrand of Norway, both now of this city. The bride, who was given in marriage by Mrs. Thomas Rowan, looked charming in a gown of soft shell-pink taffeta and silver lace reaching to her feet. The long veil of pink silk embroidered net was arranged Juliette fashion with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a sheaf of pink carnation and fern. The groom was supported by Mr. Thomas Rowan. Mrs. Adam Carnocham acted as matron of honor. After a honeymoon in Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. Nordstrand will take up their residence at 324 Michigan Street.

St. Matthias Church, Foul Bay, was the scene of an interesting wedding on Wednesday at noon, when Rev. A. G. E. Munson united in marriage Patricia Frances, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Porritt, of Howe Street, and Mr. Walter B. S. Watson, son of the late Mr. J. A. Watson and Mrs. Watson, Oak Bay Avenue. The church had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, and was filled with friends of the bride and groom. To the strains of wedding music played by Miss Dorothy Osborn, the bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She looked lovely in her wedding gown of old ivory lace and georgette, and a smart felt hat trimmed with an ostrich feather, matching her gown. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies. She was attended by her two little nieces, the Misses Prudence and Norah Stephenson, and by little Mary Church, a niece of the groom. Mr. J. H. Watson supported his brother as best man. The little attendants wore picturesque Kate Greenaway frocks and carried old-fashioned bouquets. A reception, attended only by relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom, was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and groom left on the afternoon boat for Vancouver, where they will reside.

Local friends of the bridegroom, who was formerly on the mechanical staff of The Daily Times, will be interested in the wedding celebrated at West Point Grey Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, on Thursday, October 8, when Elizabeth Russel Wallace, daughter of Mrs. J. Wallace of Vancouver, was united in marriage to Mr. Allan Stewart of Winnipeg, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart of Victoria. Rev. William Patterson officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Wallace, while Mr. Duncan Stewart of Victoria, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The bridal gown was of white Chantilly lace, while the veil, embroidered white net, was confined to the head with a wreath of orange blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth McAlpine, wore a frock of pale blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. During the signing of the register, Mr. Joseph Whitmore rendered a violin solo and acting as ushers were Mr. Archie Wallace and Mr. Donald McAlpine. After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's mother for immediate relatives of the bride and groom. After a honeymoon in Seattle, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart spent the week-end in Victoria as the guests of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stewart, 510 Wilson Street, and left on Tuesday for their home in Winnipeg.

Pyjama Shower For Patients At Tubercular Ward

As in former years the members of the Florence Nightingale Chapter, I.O.D.E., are asking the public to contribute towards the comfort of the tubercular patients of the Jubilee Hospital by donations of flannelette pyjamas. Last year forty-two pairs were collected from members and friends of the order and a like response would be gratefully appreciated. J. H. Fletcher has generously allowed the use of his music store to-morrow when members of the Florence Nightingale Chapter will be in attendance to receive donations.

WILL TELL OF CONDITIONS IN GREAT BRITAIN

Col. G. O. Fallis to Lecture Next Thursday to Aid Workroom Fund

"Will Great Britain Survive?" This question will form the subject of what promises to be an intensely interesting and timely lecture to be given by Col. the Rev. G. O. Fallis of Vancouver at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Thursday evening, October 22, in aid of the unemployed women's workroom fund.

Col. Fallis, whose frequent address before the Women's Canadian Club and the Rotary Club of this city have proved him to be a forceful and dynamic speaker, has recently returned from an extended stay in Great Britain and Europe and his observations of economic conditions form the basis of his lecture. This same lecture was heard by over two thousand people in Vancouver recently, many being turned away owing to lack of accommodation.

WORKROOM PROVES BOON

The workroom, in whose aid the lecture is being arranged, was organized by local women's organizations for the assistance of women in needy circumstances who prefer to give some measure of return for assistance rather than seek charity. The large number of applications for employment at the workroom has proved conclusively that it is filling an imperative need in Greater Victoria, but funds are essential if the work is to be carried on.

To this end the committee is arranged for Col. Fallis's lecture, he having given the same lecture in Vancouver for the benefit of the mainland unemployed with much success. The members of the finance committee, of which Miss M. A. Wigley is convener, have charge of the lecture plans, and tickets, which are at a nominal figure, may be secured from her committee or from any members of the general committee, of which Mrs. Arthur Walsh is the president.

CARUSO'S WIDOW SUED FOR RING

Jewel Belonging to Lilian Russell Subject of Court Dispute

New York, Oct. 16.—Before a black-gowned judge in an austere courtroom the story of an emerald and diamond ring that one belonged to Lillian Russell was unfolded to-day.

Miss Russell's daughter, Dorothy Russell Calvin, told the court through counsel that the ring was given to her mother in 1901 by an admirer.

The widow of Enrico Caruso testified it was given to her as an engagement ring in March, 1927, by the late Alexander P. Moore, former Ambassador to Spain, who was Miss Russell's husband when she died in 1922.

Mrs. Calvitt is suing Mrs. Caruso for the ring or $50,000 and both appeared in Supreme Court yesterday for examination before trial.

Mrs. Calvit's story was that the ring was presented to her mother in her absence, and a few months later her mother gave it to her for a birthday present.

When Miss Russell died, the daughter said she went into mourning and turned the ring, with her other jewelry, over to her stepfather, Moore, for safekeeping. He failed to return the ring, she said.

Mrs. Caruso testified that after having been engaged to Moore for nearly a year she broke the engagement in 1928 and offered to return the ring. He told her to keep it, she said, and that, if he married first, he would take it back, but that if she married first, he would give it to her for a wedding present. Moore died in 1930 before either had married.

Screen Star Is Director's Bride; Honeymoon Here

Los Angeles, Oct. 16.—Arline Judge, stage and screen actress, and Wesley Ruggles, motion picture director, were married at high noon yesterday at the bridegroom's Beverly Hills home.

Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron performed the ceremony while an array of filmdom's celebrities looked on. Mr. and Mrs. Ruggles left immediately for a honeymoon in British Columbia.

Mrs. Grace Oran was matron of honor. The bridesmaids included Adela Rogers St. John and Leila Hyams. Ushers were Dick Hyland, Skeets Gallagher, A. Hall, Buster Collier, Arthur Green and William Seiler. Charles Ruggles, film comedian and brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

Maccabees' Dance.—The local Maccabees will hold another popular dance in their new ballroom at 724 Fort Street, just above the English Bakery, to-night, beginning at 9 and continuing till 1 o'clock. Jack Baxter and his Maccabee orchestra will be in attendance to supply the dance numbers.

RECLUSE'S GEMS ADD TO FORTUNE

Mrs. Ida Wood's $900,000 in Currency Almost Equalled in Jewels Found

New York, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Ida Wood's forty trunks have produced a fortune in gems nearly equaling the $900,000 fortune in currency she carried on her seventy-pound person.

The examination of the last of the trunks was being continued to-day. Many pieces of jewelry found yesterday had been stripped of their jewels, Mrs. Wood apparently having taken out the stones and hidden them separately. Most of the stones were found in different hiding places. Some still are missing. Her nephew and guardian, Otis Wood, was hopeful the missing gems would be found in the trunks that remained to-day to be searched.

Still indignant over the encroachment by the law upon her seclusion, the ninety-three-year-old woman, belle of another day, is spending some time with needle and thread, repairing her old-fashioned gowns. She holds the garments within a few inches of her eyes, for her sight is very poor.

A report filed by a physician with the court, which has taken over the eccentric recluse's affairs, sets forth that Mrs. Wood suffers from hallucinations. The report speaks also of a "paranoid trend" and notes that Mrs. Wood smokes cigars with "evidence of appreciation."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

ARE YOU A HARASSED OR A BUSY MOTHER?

I get a great many appeals from "harassed" mothers, demanding to know how to manage all their housework and still have time to give the baby or children the necessary attention. This is one of those situations which only the housewife herself can work out. The ability to work steadily or speedily is not given to all individuals, and so it is futile to outline what anyone should do daily because someone else can do that same amount of work.

SCHEDULE HELPFUL

Probably the mother whose work swamps her has no schedule of tasks. It is a great help to write down on paper what one has to do each day in the week. There are only so many hours in a day and so many tasks to be done. The last must fit somewhere into the first. If the children have regular schedules—and they are the biggest time-saver the mother can have—she can plan to do her most meticulous work when they are asleep. A mother can sew or dust or scrub or make beds with a child trailing after her. But few mothers can successfully cook a meal with a crying baby in the kitchen.

A mother has a right to make use of any time-saving device. Her home should be simply furnished if she must care for it herself, and she would do better to use paper napkins and tablecloths, or even oilcloth covers for the table, than to be bitter and cross and on the outs with the world for the sake of fresh linen ones.

I was interested in the following schedule because it is systematic, and an actual, not a theoretical, one. I imagine it sounds worse itemized on paper than it proves to be when translated into action. Every minute of the morning is made to count, but that leaves time for recreation in the afternoon, a consideration mothers plan for but which they seldom accomplish.

A BUSY MOTHER'S DAY

"I often wonder why mothers never seem to have time to play with their children," Mrs. E. W.'s letter started. "Is it because they haven't the proper equipment for housework or is it just lack of a system.

"I arise at 6.30 a.m., feed and change Ann and have her out of the way and playing by 7 a.m. I start breakfast and my husband and I eat this leisurely. He is gone by 8 a.m.

"After breakfast I stack dishes, sweep kitchen and basement stairs, wash dishes, sterilize bottles, make beds, shake rugs, boil milk for baby, and get vegetables ready for lunch.

"I vacuum rugs in living and dining-room—on Mondays and Fridays the furniture and drapes, also—empty wastebasket, soak baby's clothes, clean bathroom and scrub tiled floor.

"I am through with this by 10.15 a.m. and have time for Ann's bath and feeding for her at 11.15.

"I wash clothes daily and use an electric washer and wringer. From then until noon my tasks vary. I wash windows or mirrors, dampen clothes, polish furniture or just rest. My husband comes home for lunch and after that baby is awake and I'm ready to shop and walk her around until 4 p.m.

"She is in bed by 6 p.m. and while I don't do the family washing I do iron the baby's clothes once a week after dinner. I'm busy but not 'harassed'."

"MA" KENNEDY IN VAUDEVILLE

She and New Husband Sign Contract With R.K.O.

Los Angeles, Oct. 16.—It is now the vaudeville team of Hudson and Kennedy.

Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, and her new husband, Guy Edward Hudson, whom she married twice overcome legal entanglements over his undissolved marriage to another woman, will go on the stage.

They refused to say what they would do, or how much they will earn, but it was said that Radio-Keith-Orpheum had signed them for thirteen weeks at $1,500 a week, between them. If they "click" it means an extension for twenty-seven weeks more.

Chapter to Hold Telephone Bridge For Its Funds

The Robert Burns McMicking Chapter, I.O.D.E., held their regular monthly meeting at the Municipal rooms on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. H. G. Bolt, regent, presided, nineteen members being in attendance. Correspondence received during the past month was read by the secretary, Miss Tressie Gilliland, and Miss Kay Tadman, treasurer, reported as to the financial standing of the chapter.

During the evening a donation was voted to the Secondary Education Fund, and it was also decided to send a library to a new school just opened in the Peace River country.

Miss Hilda Margetts reported regarding the final winding up of the campaign to augment the sale of Hope Brand brooms, made by the blind. The members of the Robert Burns McMicking Chapter are very grateful for the wonderful assistance given them during this campaign by the other I.O.D.E. chapters, and it is to be hoped that the result of the campaign will soon be felt in the increased demand for these fine grades of brooms.

Before the meeting adjourned, it was decided to hold a telephone bridge on Monday evening, November 2. All the members are requested to have as many tables as possible in their own homes. The totals will be telephoned in to headquarters, which will be at the home of Mrs. H. G. Bolt, and the prizes duly awarded. It is to be hoped that this new type of bridge will be a great success. Further particulars can be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Bolt, E 0837, or Miss Connie Chrow, G 5889.

HEIRESS WEDS HER CHAUFFEUR

Eighteen-year-old Girl Spends $100,000 on Home; Inherited Oil Millions

Beverly Hills, Cal., Oct. 16.—The marriage of Florence A. McAllister, eighteen-year-old heiress to Oklahoma oil land riches, to her chauffeur, a former taxicab driver, was disclosed yesterday.

The girl has been married for several weeks to Edward Challette, former chauffeur for Warner Baxter, movie actor, and later driver of a taxicab here. Friends indicated that his expert manipulation of a car won Florence's admiration one night, and she forthwith hired him as her private chauffeur.

The wedding became public after the bride's cash purchase of a $55,000 home and $37,500 furnishings here.

Mrs. Challette is the daughter of the late Mrs. Florence McAllister, who died in 1930, leaving an estate of $3,000,00 to three children and valuable Indian oil lands in Oklahoma which she inherited from her father.

Facts
Concerning the World's Best Tonic Food Beverage

YOUR health is too important for you to take risks by drinking any haphazard mixture of food ingredients. You want a food beverage which will be perfect and complete, and which you can rely upon to give health and strength.

The Essential Food Elements

A perfect food beverage must contain proteins, fats, carbohydrates, mineral salts and vitamins. Scientists claim that these vital elements are contained most abundantly in malt, milk and eggs. That is why these wonderful foods of Nature form the constituents of "Ovaltine". Malt extract is used, for powdered malt does not yield the same food value or exert the same digestive power. Pure fresh milk is used. Dried milk is not good enough for "Ovaltine". The eggs are obtained from specially selected sources. 12,500,000 fresh eggs are used each year.

Proteins are obtained from all three ingredients. There are several proteins—all of which are necessary. Milk does not give them all, but a combination of malt, milk and eggs, as in "Ovaltine", supplies them. Fats are contained in the milk and eggs. Carbohydrates are present in the malt and milk. These are natural sugars and are far superior to cane sugar.

Mineral salts—iron, calcium and phosphorus—are derived from the milk and eggs. No nerve-restoring food would be complete without lecithin, which is derived from egg-yolk—hence the importance of fresh eggs in "Ovaltine". Vitamins—owing to the combination of malt, milk and eggs—are all contained in "Ovaltine" and are present in correct ratio.

Correctly Balanced Nourishment

Not only must a perfect food beverage contain all these elements but they must be supplied in correct proportions and in the most readily assimilable form, as in "Ovaltine". It is easily digested because it contains no starch or added sugar. It is flavoured with cocoa—not chocolate. It is emphasized that it nourishes the system normally without causing "fatness".

Avoid So-Called Substitutes

Your common sense will tell you that ordinary malt or cocoa drinks, without real scientific preparation, cannot possibly compare with "Ovaltine". You should make these enquiries. Are they made from malt extract as in "Ovaltine" or powdered malt? Is the milk fresh milk as in "Ovaltine" or dried milk? If they contain eggs are these new laid as in "Ovaltine" or merely dried eggs? Consider carefully if these substitutes are sweet in flavour, whether you are not paying an enormous price for sugar, which if necessary you can add yourself. "Ovaltine" contains no added sugar, but only the natural sugars contained in two of the ingredients—malt and milk.

Economical in Use

"Ovaltine"—although so superior in food value—is low in price and the most economical in use of all forms of concentrated nourishment. Make delicious "Ovaltine" your daily beverage—it is acknowledged to be the best means of giving and maintaining health, strength and vitality.

"Ovaltine" is sold at all stores in air-tight tins, at 50c, 75c, $1.25 and $4.50 (special family size).

Japanese Tour Will Be Big Chance for B.C. English Rugby Players

Victoria's Leading Players Should Get Into First-class Condition

Arranging of Tour Great Accomplishment of Canadian Rugby Union

Veteran George Godfrey Ranks Schmeling at Top of Heavyweights

ENGLISH rugby players in British Columbia will get a chance of a lifetime next January when a team of Canadian players sail from Victoria to Japan to engage in a series of six games in the Land of the Rising Sun. The big feature of the tour is the fact that of the twenty-two players to make the trip about eighteen of them will be selected from Victoria and Vancouver clubs. It will be a grand opportunity for the young players of this province and no doubt there will be keen competition for positions on the national fifteen. Not only will the players have the honor of representing Canada, but they will have the chance to see the Orient under the best possible conditions.

Ever since the visit to British Columbia last season of the Japanese ruggers the Nippons have been keen for a Canadian fifteen to make a return visit. The men from the country of the orange blossoms thoroughly enjoyed their visit to this province and no doubt the Canadians will be treated like heroes during their stay in Japan. Immediately upon their return home last season the Japanese commenced negotiations to have a Canadian team go there this year and, although many difficulties arose, final plans have now been completed for the tour. The Japanese have been most liberal in their financial guarantee and everything points to a most successful six-game series.

English rugby has gone ahead by leaps and bounds in Japan and no doubt the Canadian team will face plenty of stiff competition on the tour. The Nippons won every match played in British Columbia last year and in doing so gave a number of brilliant performances. Playing on their native soil and before their own people the Nippons are expected to be even more difficult to defeat. The Japanese tour has been made possible through the fine work of the Canadian English Rugby Union. Organized only a few years ago, the union has done valuable work towards fostering the English code in Canada and the Japanese tour is the culmination of months of hard work.

It is expected that a number of Victoria players will be included in the touring team. This city has produced several of the finest oval ball handlers in the province in the last couple of seasons and they are practically a cinch to make the national fifteen. It is up to all players to go into hard training immediately if they intend to try for positions on the club. The test match will be held in Vancouver on December 12 between teams representing the Island and Vancouver. It will be at this match that the selection committee will look over the men and make their final selection.

George Godfrey is a fighter. He is at present devoting his time to wrestling, but his heart is in the boxing game and he has no hesitation in telling anyone who cares enough to ask. He will not get his promised bout with Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, so he says. He'd like to battle Carnera again, but he doesn't think the bout will ever go through.

"Who is the greatest heavyweight fighter in the world to-day?" Godfrey was recently asked. George is no shrinking violet when it comes to answering questions, but he just grunted at that one and drawled that it is a pretty hard one to answer. "There's a lot of good ones, and a lot of people under-estimate Schmeling. The German's a real champion. I never fought him, but he's a lot better than many people think. And that Carnera. He's tough, too. Sharkey is good but he is an inner-and-outer." That is the way Godfrey, who likes to fight, but wrestles for a living, sizes up the heavyweight situation to-day.

Dave Shade, who twice came within an ace of being champion in the welter division, recently fought his 404th fight. And after all these years that 404th was in the Madison Square Garden!

Dave dropped Jack Britton, but didn't get Jack's welterweight title. He fought Mickey Walker a tough battle for the same crown, but didn't win. He beat Slattery when the Buffalo boy was most promising. The Buffalo youngster was in fine condition, had been winning steadily, and entered the ring with all the confidence in the world. He might as well have been boxing with a smoke ring. Every time he stuck out his fist he fanned the air and the only time he saw Shade was from a position on the canvas. He spent considerable time sitting down and getting up again, with Shade playing a tap dance on his chin between rests.

But out of those 404 fights there have been lots of slow ones, in which Dave took it easy and contented himself with doing as little as possible. That's why he has lasted so long. It shows a long record is not always to a man's credit.

University, Brentwood, College and Scottish To Clash In Fixtures

Mount Tolmie and Tod Inlet Boys Expected to Furnish Feature Attraction on Programme To-morrow; Victoria College, If Playing in Form, Should Have Edge Over Highlanders; Teams on Edge Waiting First Whistle

The tide of battle in Victoria's Intermediate Rugby League will roll in to-morrow with four of the six teams in the division clashing in what should prove fast and hard-fought matches. At Mount Tolmie, University School's speedy first team will match its tricky backfield against Brentwood College's driving forwards, while at Victoria High School grounds, Victoria College, city and provincial champions, will meet the improved Canadian Scottish.

After weeks of preparation the second division squads have developed into good fifteens and if the style of rugby is somewhat rugged as the season opens, the fight in all teams should make up for any lack of finish.

All squads are out for an initial victory and each figures on an even break to start off with a win.

TRADITIONAL RIVALS MEET

It should be a battle well worth watching when University School and the Brentwood boys clash. Rivals in the High School League even after their withdrawal from the intermediate division, the two schools have lost none of their desire to meet.

In the pack division, University will depend upon Leggatt, Mercer, Wilkinson and Mackid 1 to do much of their offensive work. All saw service with the first fifteen last season and are reported to be functioning smoothly this year.

Mackid 1 will start as fullback and should prove a good obstacle to any Tod Inlet lad who breaks through.

In the pack Hackney will be the only member of last season's first fifteen back. However, he will have good support in Clement and other boys who have been brought up from the 1930 second team as well as this year's recruits.

The squad has been practicing a nice combination game, and with its fast backfield is expecting to even up its chances against the Brentwood players.

DEPENDING ON FORWARDS

Placing most of their hope in the fighting pack, with its fast follow-up plays, Brentwood College should furnish plenty of opposition for the Mount Tolmie fifteen.

Arkell, who held down the position of fullback last year, will again be in his favored place. Terry Todd, one of the College's fastest sprinters and star last year, along with Barrett-Lennard, Thorn, Fraser, another 1930 player, and Woods, should form a strong three line.

Wilkinson and Wilkins may play half.

Archibald, Sharland and Fraser Mitchell, old stagers who have been working on a driving forward attack, will form the backbone of the pack. Buck, Kinlock, Poole and Driscoll are other boys who will doubtless make their weight felt in the scrum.

Without the service of "Squeak" McNeill, star wing three last season, the Brentonians will be somewhat below par in the three division, but are expected to improve as the season goes on.

NEED MORE PUNCH

There is considerable speculation over the Victoria College-Canadian Scottish game. If the Craigdarroch boys play anything like they did last year, they should have little difficulty with the fighting Highlanders. But in practices to date the students have failed to show the punch which carried them to victory in many a fixture during the last three years.

The Scottish, optimistic over their chances up to the beginning of the week, will be considerably below strength owing to the illness of players. However, they will have a heavy team on the field and should ruffle the composure of the Collegians.

"Nellie" Nelson, old-timer with the students, will hold down fullback's position again, according to the dope.

GOOD INDIVIDUAL PLAYERS

In the three-quarter line, Bob Mabee, "Chuck" Copeland, Roberts, and possibly Lynn Patrick or Archie Miller are probable players. Individually they have shown good form in former seasons, but unless they display a better passing game than they have done, they may run into a snag in the Highlanders.

Luttrell and Thorpe are probable halves.

Bill Crothall, the only man who has been following up on forward plays this season; Carey, Fyke Uward, Wilson, English and Hammersley, may form the scrum.

Ted Colgate may be used as five-eights.

Bill Parker is listed for fullback's position for the Scottish. Bill Hill, Bill Stark, Roy Lund, Cliff Kirkham or Harold Hall are expected to gain places in the three-quarter line.

Bob Quinn and Jack Tyrer are slated as half backs.

The pack seems to be heavy on paper, but whether or not it will stand up before the College's scrum cannot be determined. Bob Lee, Uhler, Rolly Hall, Jim Warburton, Ralph Hocking, Rowton, Hesslein and Correnelle are billed as forwards.

With the ground still hard, the squads with the fast backfields should enjoy a slight advantage.

GYMNASTS TO ARRIVE HERE FROM ORIENT

Niels Bukh, Famous Health Expert, and Party Returning From Tour of Japan

Will Give Demonstrations in Vancouver and Many Other Canadian and U.S. Cities

Accompanied by a picked team of twenty-five men and women pupils, Niels Bukh, principal of the Gymnastic Peoples' College, Ollerup, Denmark, and creator of an internationally recognized system of fundamental gymnastics, will arrive in Victoria, October 25, on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada. He is returning with hs band of gymnasts from Japan, where he has been demonstrating the Bukh system on a tour arranged by the Japanese Government.

As a part of a round-the-world tour the Bugh ensemble will visit fifteen Canadian and United States cities giving performances, beginning in Vancouver October 26, and winding up in Toronto, November 17. Bukh and his pupils left Denmark in August, visiting Germany, Poland, Russia, Siberia and China en route to Japan.

INTERNATIONALLY KNOWN

Bukh, internationally celebrated, has given demonstrations to the British Army school of physical training, Aldershot, and for the League of Nations in principal countries of Europe. He was a sailor, a soldier and a farmer before taking to gymnastics as his profession. Fifty-one years old he is still the perfect embodiment of what he teaches. He founded the Gymnastic Peoples' College in 1920 and has built it into an international centre of physical education.

Bukh led Danish gymnasts at the Olympic games in 1912, 1920 and 1924. He holds the Knight Cross of the Ancient Danish Order of Dannebreg and the Knight Order of the Icelandic Falcon for his contributions to gymnastic science.

In his present world tour he is illustrating with the aid of his company twenty-five men and women his system of dynamics whereby the love of movement is inculcated, lending enjoyment to exercise and promoting health and energy.

STEVE JONES WINS TITLE

Victoria Boy Captures Tennis Honors at Pomona College in California

Steve Jones, son of Stephen Jones, proprietor of the Dominion Hotel here, holds the men's singles tennis championship of the freshman class at Pomona College, Claremont, Calif., by reason of his victory on October 4 over John Shelton of La Jolla.

Jones, seeded second, defeated in three straight sets his rival, seeded first, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

According to the report of the match in The Student Life, college paper, published daily at Pomona, Jones's powerful drive gave him an advantage in the contest which culminated a two-day tournament played on the Hearst courts. The new champion had previously beaten Dave Rorick, seeded third, 6-0, 5-7, 6-1.

Steve is also taking up football with the college squad and is making a creditable showing at the American game.

He is completing his education at Pomona.

Many of the matches were exceptionally close. A return fixture will be held later in the season.

Teams follow:

Christ Church — Mrs. White, Mrs. Simpson, Misses Redding and Love; Pritchard, White, Barnes and Fish.

Emmanuel Baptist — Mrs. Main, Mrs. Erikson, Misses Campbell and Marquhart; G. Erikson, E. Erikson, Major Rycroft, Main, Wilson, Campbell and Blake.

Miracles of Sport — By Robert Edgren

"Terry Best, Hack Worst," Demaree

Bill Terry gets my vote as the most valuable player to his club in the National League. Terry is a real slugger of the old school. He has probably been at bat more times than any player in his league, which shows that he has had very few bases on balls and made few sacrifice hits. His type of hitter drives in the runs after the fellow batting before him has reached first base. Klein and Davis of the Phillies are close on his heels for the honors, as are Frisch, Grimes and Hafey of the St. Louis Cardinals, Herman of Brooklyn, Meinie of Pittsburgh and Cuyler of Chicago.

Hack Wilson, the sensation of the 1930 National League season, was, in comparison, the season's greatest bust. Poor Hack never could get started, and finally faded from the box scores, batting about 260.

Exhibition Group Willing to Stage Olympic Try-outs

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—The Vancouver Exhibition Association's offer to stage the 1932 Canadian Olympic trials at Hastings Park will be discussed in detail at a meeting between executive members of the local board of the A.A.U. and Manager J. K. Matheson of the exhibition association, within a day or two, President A. Riley of the local board, stated yesterday. The exhibition body's proposal to put on the trials, bearing all the expense but also taking all gate receipts, was brought up at the annual meeting of the local board and left to the incoming executive with power to act.

The situation has been thoroughly gone over and the exhibition association will now be interviewed with regard to certain modifications of their original offer.

Edmonton Grads In Smothering Victory

Women's Basketball Champs Defeat Challenging Pocatello Five 82 to 20

Grads Display Sparkling Teamwork; Millie McCormack Leads Scorers

Edmonton, Oct. 16. — Percy Page's Edmonton Commercial Grads, holders of the Underwood International Basketball Trophy, smothered the Pocatello, Idaho, challengers in the first game of a two-game series played in Edmonton Thursday night, by a score of 82 to 20. The second game of the series is scheduled to-morrow evening.

Teamwork that fairly sparkled was served up by the Grads throughout the entire game, and their shooting was such that they scored practically at will. The visitors made their best showing in the third period, when Coach Page had Millie McCormack, Gladys Fry and Elsie Bennie, three of the "Big Five," sitting on the bench for a rest, but at no time did it look as if the score would be at all close.

LEADS SCORERS

Millie McCormack, right forward for the Grads, ran wild to register twenty-eight points, and Ruth Lacy, with ten points, was the biggest scorer for the visitors.

Line-up and summary:

The Army and Navy players managed to win three of their four games against the Pats, although they were extended to the limit in each fixture.

Here we've been talking about Canadian rugby all the time, and have forgotten entirely the great English game from which all games of football are derived. (Three cheers for the red, white and blue). All joking aside (but no whispering), this game of rugger is sweeping Canada like the current depression. There are more and more teams being added to the various leagues each year, and the crowds attending the games are getting bigger too. This English game has our own Canadian game backed off the map when it comes to thrilling open play. How those boys stand up under a sixty-minute grind in uniforms that might just as well be bathing suits for all the protection they give, is more than we can figure out. In British Columbia and the Maritimes, they have tried the Canadian game and found it wanting, and as a result, the English game is about the only style played. As far as science is concerned, don't run away with the idea that the fifteen-man game is just a case of chase the ball and the devil take the last man. The supporters of the game claim there is more science in it than in the American and Canadian varieties rolled into one then multiplied by two. Now what they need is a Canadian championship—and east meet west series. They have some series now, but it is not a true championship.

Babe Ruth States Athletics Through

Denver, Oct. 16.—Babe Ruth says the Athletics are "through" and that 1932 will see the end of Philadelphia's domination of the American League.

In Denver, on a barnstorming tour, the Bambino said the New York Yankees needed only one winning pitcher to climb into the championship parade.

Canadian Athletes Will Participate In Olympic Games

Olympic Committee at Round-table Conference Yesterday at Toronto Decides to Send Teams to Los Angeles and Lake Placid, Providing Necessary Funds Can Be Raised; Vancouver Must Declare Intentions on Olympic Trials; Hamilton Making Strong Bid for Events

Toronto, Oct. 16—Canada will be represented at the Olympic Games of 1932, if the necessary funds to equip and transport the Canadian team are forthcoming. This was the decision yesterday of the Canadian Olympic committee, which met behind closed doors to discuss the question of whether Canada would participate in the Olympics. The games are to be held at Lake Placid, N.Y., and Los Angeles.

German, French, South African, New Zealand, Australian and other British athletes will be invited to attend an athletic meet in Canada following the Olympics, the committee decided.

While the press was excluded from the meeting proper, an official statement issued afterwards said:

"Every effort will be made by the Canadian Olympic Committee to send representative teams to Lake Placid and Los Angeles in 1932. The money to send such teams will be raised by government grants, private and general subscriptions, and assessment of gate receipts of athletic meets. Various governing bodies of sports concerned will be requested to raise a percentage of the cost of sending athletes to the Olympic Games.

"British Columbia will be asked by President James I. Morkin, Winnipeg, for a definite declaration of their intentions as to the Olympic track and field trials."

HAMILTON AFTER TRIALS

Mr Morkin is president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. Vancouver had been selected as the venue for trials, but Hamilton has also made a strong bid for the events.

Doubt has existed for some time as to whether or not Canada would participate in the Olympics of next year. Due to economic depression, several countries had declared their inability to take part, and since the long trip to the Coast will be an expensive proposition, every effort will be made to raise funds to transport the Canadian squads.

The meeting yesterday was called as one of the Canadian Olympic Committee. In reality, however, it resolved itself into a round-table conference of members of the committee and outstanding executive officers of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Those attending were P. J. Mulqueen, Toronto, president of the Olmpic Committee; Mr. Morkin; James Beaton, Montreal; Claude C. Robinson, Winnipeg; William A. Fry, Dunnville, Ont.; Judge J. A. Jackson, Lethbridge, Alta; Charles E. Higginbottom, Toronto; M. M. Robinson, Winnipeg; J. H. Crocker, London, Ont.; Fred H. Marples, Winnipeg; J. W. Hamilton, Regina, and W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.

LOCAL HOOP TEAMS PLAY AT KEATING

Three Victoria Squads Play Suburbanites in Exhibitions To-night

Buyats Engage in Feature Game; Two Other Good Fixtures

Three more Victoria basketball teams will journey to Keating to-morrow night to try conclusions with the suburbanite squads, with the Buyats meeting the Keating Senior "B" men in the feature engagement. The other two games will bring together the Keating women and the Standard Steam Laundry, while the J.B.A.A. men will tangle with the Keating Senior "C" team in the opening game.

Last week three teams from the city visited the Agricultural Hall and all suffered defeat, but to-morrow the local teams expect to make a better showing.

The feature game will mark the second appearance of each squad this year, with Keating having defeated Slinger's in their first appearance, while the Buyats were forced to accept defeat at the hands of the Commercials.

"Hum" Tubman will get the first game started at 7.45 o'clock, with the other two following immediately.

Lomski Held to a Draw By Rickard

Tacoma, Oct. 16. — Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, former light-heavyweight contender, but now weighting 192 pounds, was held to a draw decision by George Rickard, Tacoma, in the six-round main event of the boxing programme here yesterday evening. Most of the fans thought that Lomski had a distinct advantage, giving him four rounds and figuring the other two even.

Rickard made an unexpectedly good showing, shooting a straight left to the face and occasionally scoring with telling right. Lomski hurt Rickard with several hard body punches, and was the aggressor practically all the way.

Portland Heavyweight Wrestler Disqualified in Bout With Harkovsky

Kerchmeyer and McKay Draw; Joe Malcewicz Beaten By Jim Browning

Kruse weighed 201, Harkovsky 220.

Roland Kerchmeyer, Vancouver, and Pat McKay, Memphis, heavyweights, divided falls in a six-round draw.

Nanjoo Singh, trainer of "Tiger" Dauls, East Indian wrestler, defeated Stanley Roberts, Devon, England, by taking the odd fall in three.

Baltimore, Oct. 16—Sandor Szabo, heavyweight wrestler from Hungary, threw Dick Daviscourt, California, here yesterday evening with a half hold in 30 minutes. The attendance was 1,500. In the semi-final George Hagen, New York, 212, and Don Delong, Toronto, 215, drew.

St. Louis, Oct. 16—George Zaharias, 230, Pueblo, threw Ernie Dusek, 216, Omaha, in 29 minutes and 47 seconds in the feature match of a wrestling show here yesterday evening.

Boston, Oct. 16—Jim Browning, 225-pound St. Louis wrestler, threw Joe Malcewicz, 205, Utica, N.Y., two out of three falls in the main bout of yesterday evening's Boston Garden Show.

Toronto, Oct. 16—Hurling his opponent to the mat with a reverse body slam, Henri Deglane, Montreal claimant of the world heavyweight wrestling championship, yesterday evening defeated "Farmer" George McLeod, Nebraska, when he threw the westerner in 45 minutes and 5 seconds. Doctors ruled McLeod was in no condition to continue after the first fall.

Soccer Teams Engage In Double-header To-morrow

Powerful Saanich And Jokers Teams In Feature Clash

After Draw With Esquimalt Last Week Thistles Will Make Strong Effort to Break Winning Streak of Jokers; Victoria City and Esquimalt Meet in Opener at Royal Athletic Park at 2.15 o'Clock; Dockers Favored to Win; Four Junior Games Scheduled; New Westminster Royals Here October 31

To-morrow afternoon's first division football programme will onsist of a double-header at the Royal Athletic Park. In the pening game, commencing at 2.15 o'clock, Esquimalt, defending hampions, and Victoria City will clash. This match will be fol-owed by a tussle between the Jokers and Saanich Thistles. Mc-Millan will referee the initial counter and Robb the second game. The twin bill looks like a good one and should draw a large ttendance.

With the schedule in its third week the Jokers are out in front of the race with a pair of victories over the Victoria City and the Wests. Esquimalt are holding down second place with a win and a draw, good for three points, while the Thistles are third with one point gained from a draw in their only match to date. The Wests and City have failed to earn a point. To-morrow the former club will be idle through a bye.

DOCKERS FAVORED

The opening game to-morrow will find Esquimalt favored to win. Last week the Dockers were held to a 1 to 1 draw by the Thistles after blanking the Wests 3 to 0 in their opening start. The Dockers have lined up just about the same club that carried them to the title last season and rate quite a bit stronger than the City, although the latter club held the Jokers to a 2 to 1 score in their first game of the season. The Dockers will be strengthened to-morrow by the addition of Boyd to their halfback line. He will hold down the centre-half position, flanked on either side by Sweeney and John Watt. The latter player will also be making his first appearance of the season. Late last season Watt received a knee injury that kept him out of the game for the remainder of the schedule but is in good shape now. The City has not announced its starting team but it is expected to be the same as in the opening game.

FEATURE GAME

The Thistles-Jokers clash is expected to be the feature game of the afternoon. The Jokers have signed a large number of players and are capable of fielding a powerful club. Last Saturday they handed the Wests a 5 to 0 trouncing and to-morrow hope to run their string of victories to three. After holding Esquimalt to a draw last Saturday the Thistles should provide lots of competition. The Saanich club, a strong contender last season, has been strengthened by the addition of several new players and should be right up near the top of the standings this year.

The teams follow:

Esquimalt — De Costa; Joe Watt, Nicol; John Watt, Boyd, Sweeney; R. Stewart, Stevens, Pepin, Wagland and Barnswell. Reserves, Hosmer and Mesher.

Jokers to be chosen from the following: Chalmers, Marginson, Leggett, Rogers, Campbell, Preston, Carmichael, Price, Sage, Purdy, Stofer, Collie and Woodley.

The Jokers players are requested to be at the park not later than 3.15 o'clock.

Saanich Thistles to be chosen from the following: Bridges, Nurse, Armitage, Harper, Joe Crowe, Viggers, Jim Crowe, A. Speller, Williams, King, Essler, Burns, Minnis and Gibbons.

Four matches will be played to-morrow afternoon in the Junior League with the following draw:

Esquimalt vs. Duncan at Hampden Park; referee, Davis.

Royal Oak vs. Saanich Thistles at Reynolds Field; referee, Clarke.

Jokers vs. Victoria Juniors at Victoria West Park; referee, Bundock.

Oaklands vs. Y.M.C.A. at Spencers Park; referee, Windsor.

All games will commence at 2.45 o'clock.

The teams follow:

Victoria Juniors — Hood, Moody, Laird, Allen, Smith, Collins, McMillan, Chesworth, Halkett, Medlicott and Gibson; reserves, Sherry and H. Johnson.

Royal Oak—Barry; Griffin, Robbins; Gibson, Stofer, Briggs, G. Payne, J. Payne, Blanco, Robbins and Pye; reserve, Hetherington.

Y.M.C.A.—Martin, Thomas, Brown, Bailey, Engleson, Hill, MacLeod, McKinnon, Rose, Dixon and Gelling. Reserves, Cave and Moore. Team to meet at "Y" at 2 o'clock.

Jokers Juniors—Lorandini, Pearse, Rickinson, Kennedy, Robinson, Lorandini, Painter, Emery, Scaife, Bell and Griffiths. Reserves, Wright and Geoghon.

At a meeting of the Lower Island Football Association held yesterday evening at the Y.M.C.A. it was decided to bring the New Westminster Royals, Canadian champions, to Victoria on October 31 for an exhibition match against a Victoria "rep" eleven. The local team will be selected following to-morrow's matches.

eams Move to Training uarters; Mickey Ion Will Not Referee This Season

Vancouver Welterweight Will Make Second Start in New York To-night

May Have Trouble With Hard-hitting Trenton Boy; Dundee Meets Krieger

New York, Oct. 16. — A welterweight duel between Billy Townsend, Vancouver, and Paulie Walker, Trenton, N.J., tops Madison Square Garden's weekly boxing card to-night.

Townsend, hard pressed to win over Billy Ran, Polish socker, in his eastern debut last week, perhaps will find Walker a handful. The New Jersey boy, a puncher who can take it, fights as though he likes it.

Townsend had to get off the floor to beat Ran on a decision that failed to meet with unanimous approval from the fans and he may find himself floored again if Walker should connect square-y.

Originally Walker was to have met Benny Leonard, but Benny was banned from the Garden by New York State Athletic Commission after his unsatisfactory fight with Pal Silvers.

The semi-final of to-night's show will pit Vince Dundee, crack Newark middleweight, against Solly Krieger, New York. Tony Herrera, El Paso, Texas, Mexican, clashes with Harry Carlton, Jersey City lightweight, in the opening ten rounder.

PATRICK AND CALDWELL IN HOCKEY WAR

President of Coast League and Seattle Owner Resume Feud at Seattle Meeting

Patrick Declares Caldwell Must Sell His Interest in Team Or Step Out

Seattle, Oct. 16.—Either Hugh Caldwell, president of the Seattle Eskimos, will sell his interest in the team or step out, or Seattle will not have a team in the Pacific Coast Hockey League this winter, said Frank Patrick, Vancouver, president of the league, to-day, following a stormy meeting here yesterday.

And, answered back Caldwell, "Patrick can't run me out of hockey, and the league needs Seattle worse than Seattle needs the league."

Patrick added that Caldwell's hockey interests will be so battered within the next ten days that the Seattle magnate will "be glad to give the club away." The league president said Caldwell would receive one, two or possibly three propositions shortly and that he and brother Guy, who manages the Vancouver club, would withdraw their entry from professional hockey before going through another season with the Caldwell-Patrick feud seething.

WILLING TO SELL

And Caldwell replied: "I'll sell any time I get my price."

The first announcement made after the meeting that Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Vancouver would form the nucleus of the league this year with the possibility that teams would be entered from Calgary and Edmonton, did not mention a verbal battle between Caldwell and Patrick.

After word of the argument leaked out, Patrick said that he had been asked to resign by Caldwell in favor of Dr. Clarence Spears, football coach at the University of Oregon.

"I tendered my resignation for the second time since May and the league did not act on it," Patrick declared. "Then I asked Caldwell if he would quit and he said he would think it over."

Bear Kills Sheep Near William Head

Special to The Times

Metchosin, Oct. 16. — Having discovered that several of his sheep in the William Head district were missing, James Rainey, a government hunter, set out to investigate, and finding three sheep freshly killed, confirmed his suspicions that a bear was the cause of the trouble. After hunting all Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Mr. Rainey was reluctantly forced to abandon the chase, losing the trail in difficult country. Two more of his sheep are missing.

BLACK HAWKS TO OPEN WITH SAME LINE-UP

Practically Same Club as Last Season Will Represent Chicago in N.H.L.

Paul Thompson and Jerry Lowrey New Forward Additions; Have Many Veterans

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Godfrey Matheson, new coach of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, will have almost the same squad that fought Canadiens through five games last winter before Montreal's "Flying Frenchmen" retained possession of the historic Stanley Cup, with which to work this season.

Veteran forwards are Captain Tommy Cook, who will report to Matheson at Pittsburgh late next week; Earl Miller, Vic Desjardins, "Mush" March, Roger Jenkins, Ty Arbour, Lola Couture, Vic Ripley, Frankie Ingram and Johnny Gottselig. In addition there will be Paul Thompson, obtained from New York Rangers for Art Somers. Jerry Lowrey, star of the now-defunct Philadelphia Quakers, is another newcomer.

STRONG DEFENCE

Tried and proven defence men are Marvin (Cyclone) Wentworth, Taffy Abel, Helge Bostrom and Teddy Graham. This quartette divided the work last season and functioned brilliantly.

In the net will be the acrobatic Chuck Gardiner, who last season led the league in shutouts. The Hawks also will carry a spare goaltender, Sandy Wood, Ottawa. The squad also includes Pat O'Shea, Frank Donald and Louis Holmes, all youngsters.

Matheson, the new coach, hails from Winnipeg. His task will be to teach the youngsters the fine points of attack and figure which combinations of forwards work best. Last year's speediest set was composed of Couture, Gottselig and Ripley, but with additions to the squad, Matheson may decide on entirely different arrangements.

Twenty Teams Have Entered Badminton League This Year

Entries Close This Evening and League Executive Will Meet at Y.M.C.A. to Make Plans for Opening of Season; First Division Will Be Operated Again With Garrison, Willows and Duncan Competing; Many Teams in Third and Fourth Divisions

With the entry list closing to-night officials of the Lower Island Badminton League will meet at the Y.M.C.A. to make plans for the opening of the season. To date twenty clubs have signified their intention of competing in the various divisions, which will set a new record. These entries do not include the Cowichan-Newcastle section which will operate again. A four-team division will take care of that district.

The First Division which was not included in the league last year will be in full swing again and, if present plans mature, will enjoy its best season. When the league was formed three years ago, this section was made up of four clubs, Willows, Garrison, South Cowichan and Duncan. Duncan won by a wide margin but the following year the defending champions were the only club to enter and the league fell through. This year the Garrison and Willows clubs have again entered the field, and Duncan will probably enter two first division teams as they have accumulated most of the stars of the South Cowichan Club. This would swell the total to four.

GOOD SECOND DIVISION

The Second Division will have more teams than last year when four teams took part. If Duncan should fail to have two first teams it is very likely they will have two second teams. Christ Church and North Saanich, two of last year's teams in the second division, have not made any announcements as to their intentions.

The Third and Fourth divisions will again have the most teams as this is the most popular section of the league. It takes in the clubs which would not ordinarily get very much tournament play. To-date the following clubs have entered: Christ Church, Hudson's Bay, J.B.A.A., Willows, have entered two each, Garrison and Duncan will have three teams each, while North Saanich, Saanichton, Langford, Lake Hill, Y.M.C.A. will each have a team.

MANN THRICE STOPPED AUTO, WITNESS SAYS

George Dyson Tells Assize Jury He Was Hurt By James T. Mann

Parking Official Refused to Dismount From Car, Says Crown Witness

In the Assize Court yesterday afternoon Mr. Justice Murphy and a jury commenced trial of James T. Mann on a charge that, by wanton or furious driving of an automobile on September 4 at the Willows Exhibition, he had caused bodily harm to George A. Dyson, a ground-keeper.

Dr. J. P. Vye testified that he had examined Mr. Dyson on September 5 and other later dates and had found abrasions on the scalp and bruises on the ankles. Mr. Dyson had also complained of a sprained neck and attributed stomach trouble to the shaking received. None of the visible injuries were serious and were such as might have been caused by a small fall.

George A. Dyson walked unsteadily to the witness box when called and secured permission to sit while giving evidence. He stated that he had signalled Mr. Mann not to proceed ahead but had been ignored. He had stood in front of the car and when it thrust against him he had clung to the radiator cap. Mr. Mann had increased his speed for seventy-five feet, and the witness had been thrown off when the car was brought to a sudden stop. His head had been cut, his hip, back, neck and legs hurt and he had never been right since.

Cross-examined by H. A. Maclean, K.C., the witness admitted he had initiated civil proceedings for damages and refused to repeat positive evidence he had given in police court that Mr. Mann had never stopped his car after the witness had seized the radiator emblem. He denied he had got off the bumper, looked both ways and then mounted again. He denied having fallen off the car, asserting he had been thrown off.

A. B. Whiteman, electrician, said he saw Mr. Dyson on the bumper of Mr. Mann's car outside the Industrial Building, when the vehicle was not moving. He had asked the driver what he was doing and Mr. Mann had replied, "I'm taking him home." He had then started the car ahead. The witness saw Mr. Dyson fall off. The pair had not appeared to be quarreling.

SAY CAR STOPPED

Henry Aitkens, tendered by the Crown for cross-examination, said he saw Mr. Mann stop twice while Mr. Dyson was on the bumper. There was no traffic at the time. He did not hear Mr. Dyson say anything and saw no reason why Mr. Mann should not be allowed to drive out of the grounds by the road he was taking.

Edward Harrison said there were not many people on the grounds. The races were over, the light was good at 6.30 o'clock. He saw Mr. Dyson run in front of Mr. Mann's car and shout "stop." He put his hands on the radiator and tried to push the car backward. Mr. Mann stopped and told Mr. Dyson to get out of the road. When he started the car again Mr. Dyson leaped on the bumper. The car stopped again fifteen feet further ahead. Mr. Dyson would not get off. The car was started again. It was raining and the car was traveling in low or second gear. "It was going slowly, we got level with it and Mr. Dyson fell off. Mr. Mann stopped three times. I was going to pull Mr. Dyson off myself. I saw Mr. Dyson get off with one leg at one time, he was then laughing," said the witness.

Chief John Syme of the Oak Bay Police and Constable Albert Bannister of the city police related conversations with Mr. Mann the same evening, in which the accused had admitted the episode and had complained that Dyson had no right to mount on his car and had declared that he had stopped three times before the official had fallen off.

The trial then adjourned until this morning.

The jurors were: Ernest Abbott, George McNutt, Robert L. Challoner, William Higgins, Robert Henderson, Charles Burton, Arthur D. McLeod, Edward Ord, Albert Baird, Jacob Issler, John A. Russell and Frank S. Bone, foreman.

All jurors on the panel were released until Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

LAUDS WORK OF HOUSMAN

Dr. G. C. Sedgewick Addresses Large Audience on Cambridge Scholar-poet

University Extension Society Told of Clear-cut Style of Writer

The authenticity of A. E. Housman's somewhat pessimistic, yet bitingly true poetry was stressed by Professor Dr. G. C. Sedgewick, head of the Department of English at the University of British Columbia, in an address before the University Extension Society at Victoria College yesterday evening. Before an audience which taxed the lecture room to capacity, the popular speaker outlined the work of the great Latin scholar, comparing it with other writers. It was the first address of a series to be given this winter.

Housman was known principally for his "Shropshire Lad" and war poetry, the lecturer stated. In the latter he in no way glorified the life of the soldier, he said.

Some indication of the character of the writer could be derived from his work, Dr. Sedgewick stated, adding: "Al poetry is biographical, but the artist's actual experiences of life have to pass through the crucible of the imagination before they become poetry, and in passing through that crucible they cease to be genuine autobiography."

LATIN SCHOLAR

Touching on the life of Housman, Dr. Sedgewick said he was a learned classical student and a professor at Cambridge. He was seventy-two years old. Despite his subsequent learning, the same man had been "ploughed" at Oxford in 1882.

Through his work, "The Shropshire Lad," which the lecturer characterized as the record of a friendship or two and a love, Housman had become recognized as an authentic voice among contemporary poets.

In this series, published in 1896, as in "Last Poems," given to the public in 1922, the writer showed an authentic voice which carried the spirit of the times in which he wrote.

Dr. Sedgewick stated the poet had written "The Shropshire Lad" in twelve weeks and, having "got it out of his system," had intended to leave poetry entirely alone, according to one of his biographers. However, moved by the war, he had again turned to the muse to write what the critic Garrard declared to be the best war poems.

PERTINENT STYLE

Using a style straightforward and to the point and treating his subjects with a biting directness, Housman's verse was stimulating to a point almost medicinal, the lecturer stated.

The speaker also touched upon the barrack room ballads which came from Housman's pen, saying that they failed to show the worth of the writer as his other works did and were more or less an emulation of Kipling. In them, were treated subjects similar to those of the latter's "Departmental Ditties." Dr. Sedgewick expressed the opinion that they had been inspired by a similar imperialistic impulse to that of Kipling, but unlike them, were sardonic.

Contrasting Housman with Dowson, Oscar Wilde and Watson, poets of the so-called decadence, the lecturer stated the classical scholar might show a note of pessimism similar to that of Thomas Hardy.

Glands No Bigger Than Bean Decide Human Character

A large audience heard Dr. W. G. Alexander at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening. The remarkable influence of certain glands no larger than a bean on the physical and mental make-up was described by the lecturer.

This evening he will lecture on the training of children, without the use of the rod, and at the close will examine many on the stage.

Saturday his theme will be "Who Are the World's Greatest Benefactors?" On Sunday afternoon he will lecture to ladies at 2 o'clock on "What Women Should Know," and at 4 p.m. to men on "What Makes Wives Cold and Unresponsive." In the evening he will speak on "False Ideals, the Cause of Present Troubles."

On Monday Dr. Alexander will close his series with his lecture on "How to Read Character From Walk, Handshake, Way of Wearing the Hat, Eye, Nose, Mouth and Chin," and will demonstrate by reading the faces of those sent on the stage. They will then blindfold him and bring up others, and he promises not only to pick out the new subjects, but tell their peculiarities of disposition and talents and also the color of their eyes, complexion and hair.

AT THE THEATRES

Creditors' Group In "Beauty Shop" Will Be Amusing

It was announced by the committee in charge of the big Shrine musical comedy production, "The Beauty Shop," that all business men in the city who happen at this time to be classed among "creditors" should attend at least one of the three performances and see just how a delegation of undismayed creditors attempt to collect their bills on the first of the month. However, they prove to be not so cold-blooded as pretended, and instead of collecting their bills they advance sufficient cash to their debtor to allow him to make a trip to Corsica to settle up an estate of a deceased distant relative so that he may be able to return and pay them in full. Of course it develops, as it so often does in real life, that the estate is a myth and the only thing left by the deecased was a first-class vendetta for which the Corsicans, as a people, are noted.

The chairman of the creditors' committee is none other than J. W. Maynard, and his assistants are Geo. Ford, Jack Birnie, Fred W. Francis, Robert Morrison, W. J. W. Wilson, Harold C. Parfitt and Leo Grogan. This group has considerable singing to do while on the stage in the first act and it is said they are just about as poor singers as they are collectors.

COLISEUM THEATRE

To-day is the last chance to witness the thrilling underwater rescue enacted by Jack Holt and Richard Cromwell in "Fifty Fathoms Deep," which ends its engagement at the Coliseum Theatre. This rescue scene has become the talk of the town, its realism and suspense giving the most hardened theatregoers something to marvel at. This thrill is the climax of a drama that is absorbingly interesting and very well acted and directed. Loretta Sayers and Mary Doran completing the cast.

CAPITOL THEATRE

The first film to be made under the new policy by Paramount, that of all-British production, has been happily chosen in "These Charming People," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Starring Cyril Maude, famous English actor of the legitimate stage, this is a real drama of English society, interwoven with brilliant dialogue and witty lines which won it such popularity as a play by Michael Arlen. A strong supporting cast is headed by Nora Swinburne and Godfrey Tearle.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

It was mere matter of chance that made Carmelita Geraghty, feminine lead in "The Texas Ranger," Columbia western at the Columbia Theatre, a screen actress. She desired to follow in the footsteps of her famous father and become a writer. She took a position as script girl on the Paramount lot. It was not long before her vivid Spanish beauty attracted the eye of a director and she was cast for a picture role.

COMING TO COLISEUM

Gypsy Rhouma, the mysterious U. S. girl who has been very popular as an entertainer on the London, Berlin and Paris stages, has at last consented to go to Hollywood. Her first picture, the all-talking film version of "White Cargo," which comes to the Coliseum Theatre to-morrow, has proved such a success that she can no longer resist the tempting salaries which have been offered to her as a result of her first picture role.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

"Our Wives," comedy of marital capers, is proving popular with patrons of the Playhouse this week. When a man marries, he becomes a "changed" man. Just how "changed" he doesn't himself realize. Such is the opinion of each husband in "Our Wives," in regard to each other. The scene in which the husbands get together in a sort of common commiseration, is among the funniest in the show. The G. Donald Gray Players, including Mary Moe, Ruth Albright, Betty Kent, Gladys Virginia, Basil Osborn, Francis Sayles, Verne Layton and Lorus Bagley, make an excellent cast for "Our Wives," which will end its run with the Saturday night performance, starting at 8 o'clock. There will be a ladies' matinee Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

DOMINION THEATRE

A real treat for movie fans is offered to-day at the Dominion Theatre with the opening of the Fox romance, "Merely Mary Ann," starring those favorite screen sweethearts, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in coroles.

The picture, which was adapted from Israel Zangwill's play, tells the charming story of the love affair between a shy little servant girl in a London boarding house and a brilliant but unrecognized composer and affords both stars great opportunity for the display of their talents.

HOW TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS OR HEAD NOISES

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist a 1 oz. bottle of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucous dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. If nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh, there must be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple home treatment.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR GASSY STOMACH

Bisurated Magnesia Promptly Ends Gas, Sourness and Acid Indigestion

If everything you eat turns to gas and your stomach is a constant ferment of sourness and Acid Indigestion, try taking a little pure Bisurated Magnesia after meals for a while and get the immediate relief from stomach trouble this simple prescription unfailingly gives.

It is a serious mistake to seek relief from Indigestion or a bad stomach by using pepsin or other artificial digestants. You get relief but weaken the stomach and do not reach the cause which, nine times in ten, is simply "too much acid" in the stomach. Bisurated Magnesia, taken after meals, dissolves or neutralizes this acid, sweetens and cleans up the stomach, drives out gas and bloat and lets the stomach digest your food as nature intended without a particle of trouble.

Reliable druggists everywhere supply the genuine Bisurated Magnesia in both powder and tablets in sealed packages. Do not confuse with ordinary citrate, milk or lump magnesia. Be sure to get Bisurated, which is not a laxative and is especially prepared for stomach trouble. (Advt.)

Health Of Children In School Needs Careful Watching

* * * * * * * *

Child Must Be Properly Fed Before Going to School and Nose and Throat Need Attention

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

This time of year children are either back in school or getting ready to start. It is necessary to emphasize that the child's health is the most important consideration. It ought to have an examination as to its sight and hearing, because it will certainly not be able to keep up with other children unless it has equal capacity. Its nose and throat ought to be looked after, because infections in the nose and throat are associated with bad appetite, failure to enjoy proper exercise and rest, and therefore lowered mental ability.

Every year hundreds of children are killed or seriously injured in street accidents because they have not been advised concerning such dangers. In addition, when the child leaves home surroundings and goes out in the world it comes in contact with other children who swap apples or candy and who play with knives and other dangerous weapons and who try to persuade the child to catch rides on the back of motor cars and who in other ways may subject him to danger. A warning will not always prevent the possibility, but sometimes it will, and certainly the child has a right to such information as is available.

Other of the most serious conditions which can affect human beings are definitely preventable by modern scientific methods. These are smallpox and diphtheria. Most schools require anti-smallpox vaccination. In a great number of communities the use of diptheria toxin-antitoxin is also compulsory. The child should be immunized not only for its own benefit, but for the protection of other children with whom it may come in contact. We live in a social world and are responsible for not ourselves alone, but also for other people.

Among the most serious considerations, particularly in times of economic depression, is the question of proper nutrition. Far too often a child is sent to school with a glass of milk as its only breakfast, sometimes with just a bite of fruit. The child is going to be subjected to wear and tear, both physical and mental, such as it has not had at home. Hence it should not start for school without an adequate breakfast. "One year of good feeding at the beginning of life," said Dr. Rose, "is more important than ten after forty." A breakfast of fruit, cereal, toast and milk is the best type of breakfast for a school child. Bacon and eggs are not needed, and when taken usually result in a diminution of the cereal, which is most important for proper energy and nutrition.

In most city schools there are cafeterias in which the children obtain their luncheons. There are many schools, particularly in the south, where the child's lunch consists of a bottle of flavored carbonated beverage of one type or another, rather than hot soup, vegetables, salads and milk.

WHO WAS TO BLAME?

upon the management of the Victoria broadcasting station. Furthermore, I was informed that the Provincial Government's stenographer was there reporting the speeches verbatim, which looks very suspicious, and, if this action was official, why not hand the reports of these two speeches to the King's Printer and run off a few thousand copies, for the benefit of the disappointed radio hearers?

Was the action of cancelling the broadcasting of these speeches due to the feared criticism of the provincial government? If so, the government should remember that the electorate are their adjudicators and have a right to know the business of the province.

The radio to-day is the medium and educator of everything pertaining to literature, art, commercialism and governmental and municipal affairs. Therefore this implied muzzling of the radio does not speak very well for those in authority, and leaves the question open as to whether broadcasting companies are a public utility or a monopoly?

In conclusion, I may say that the Vancouver speakers will return to Victoria at a later date after their mass meetings at Vancouver and other cities throughout the province, when, no doubt, the many disappointed listeners-in will have the privilege of hearing them through the radio, unless otherwise advertised well beforehand.

LETTER TO THE MAYOR

To the Editor:—The following letter has been sent to Mayor Anscomb and council by single unemployed workers on city relief:

G. WAKEFIELD.
October 14, 1931.

Mayor Anscomb,
Dear Sir—

Feeling that they are being discriminated against in the matter of relief work pay, the majority of single unemployed workers of Victoria urge yourself and the council to consider the following requests at your regular meeting to-day:

1—An immediate increase to $2 per day from the $1.40 at present being paid unemployed workers on city relief.
2—Full pay for rainy days when it is too wet to work.
3—No increase in working hours.
4—Immediate remedy of the filthy sanitary conditions existing on the McDonald Estate.
5—No discrimination against unemployed workers for any cause whatsoever.
6—No compulsory drafting of men to the unemployed slave camps.
7—Change Wednesday day off to Saturday.

G. WAKEFIELD.

Spokesman for single unemployed workers on city relief.

UNEMPLOYMENT POLICY

To the Editor:—The policy of the authorities appears to be one of vindictiveness and repression.

The single unemployed in this city have been compelled to labor on every national holiday, including Christmas Day, New Year's Day, May 24, Dominion Day, Labor Day and last of all the recent Thanksgiving day.

This last is a day set aside by the Dominion Parliament as a national holiday as a token of thanks.

We unemployed men are asking ourselves thanks for what?

We have been unemployed for considerable periods, are down at heel and have hardly any clothing to face the winter which is fast approaching.

The mayor had promised a delegation that waited upon him some time back, that he would place the matter of $2 per day before the council.

At a meeting of that body a week ago the matter was brought up and a motion was made by Alderman Williams to the effect that we receive the $2 per day instead of $1.40.

Upon this understanding the men have been peaceable, worked hard and looked forward to this small increase.

For some reason, which is obvious, someone passed word to the council while that body was sitting that we were demonstrating.

This was a deliberate invention on someone's part. The matter was laid over until the next meeting.

A delegation waited upon the mayor this morning (Tuesday) and were informed that their, demand was still being considered.

In the afternoon (Tuesday) another delegation waited upon one of the aldermen and was informed by him that the mayor had the power to grant the $2. For some reason the mayor appears to be stalling the men off.

The men have kept honorably to their agreement not to demonstrate. Why keep putting us off? We are human beings looking for honest labor (which it is impossible to find). We are not cattle. We are someone's sons. Many of us have come many thousands of miles under false promises. Is there no humanitarian spirit in our public bodies? Continually stalled off and made to work Thanksgiving Day or go hungry. Truly, some ask: Thankful for what?

To crown it all, we are no wtold that men who are in dire need of shoes will not get them if they took part in the two recent demonstrations.

FRANK MORRIS.
Unemployed.

TIPS FOR THE DELEGATES

To the Editor:—Permit a few humble suggestions for the benefit of the 900 delegates to the A.F.L. convention. These delegates may have noticed that the British Columbia Government have just reduced salaries of all employees from 2 to 10 per cent "until the depression is over." This may mean one year, or five, or even more. What a fine thing it would be if the delegates in question would add one more resolution to be unanimously passed in favor of such a cut in their own salaries. Mr. Green draws a salary of $1,000 per month, which is a far higher salary than a cabinet minister in B.C. draws. Moreover, Mr. Green's salary is not by any means the highest on the labor union payroll. Also, unlike a cabinet minister's salary, these high union salaries are drawn from that section known as union workers, and represents but one-thirty-sixth of the population of the United States. One reads with amazement that some of these unions have as many as eight vice-presidents. There are lots of honest workers in Canada and the states who would truthfully class many of these 900 delegates as the idle rich. There are thousands of struggling business men in Canada to-day who have unthinkingly, or probably under unfair pressure, signed agreements with Mr. Green's union friends, which agreements preclude them for ever from earning a quarter of Mr. Green's salary. So here is a chance for Mr. Green to put through that 10 per cent. cut. The reporters will do the rest. In 1900 the president of the A.F.L. (not Mr. Green) drew a salary of $100 a month and was considered in the well-to-do class. True, our wages have trebled since then, but Mr. Green has beaten us all in the financial race, yet we are producers whilst he is a non-producer. It would be interesting to know how many of the 900 delegates assembled in Vancouver are producers. It is a safe bet that fewer than 10 per cent either toil or spin, except yarns.

Here is another chance for a "resolution." Since 1929 there have been 350,000 of the "running trades" laid off. These are the engineers, conductors, firemen, brakemen, etc., on the railroads. These are the high-priced employees, with wages ranging around $15 a day. They had to be laid off solely in the interests of economy. The railways would certainly not object to these 350,000 being reinstated provided the payroll was not increased. To provide for these Mr. Green's resolution could easily reduce wages to $8 a day. He is wasting time talking about the starving unemployed whilst tens of thousands of high-wage employees refuse to share their high wages. Does he understand that the 10 per cent cut in the steel industry has reduced wages to an average of $3.50 per day and has affected 3,000,000 people? Taking it by and large the average worker would emphatically affirm that the humble and hard-working steel employee is worth as much in the social fabric as a conductor of a train, especially as a conductor would have no job at all but for the steel worker.

Mr. Green's latent diatribe against the Communists is amusing and understandable. Up till a few months ago even Communists were forced to pay tribute to Mr. Green's agents before they could secure work on preferred jobs. There are thousands of Communists paying tribute to the A.F.L. to-day, and Mr. Green knows it; but he dare not fire one out of the union because he happens to be a Communist. So he denounces them and probably hopes they will quit the union and thus give their jobs to other union men whose policies Mr. Green approves of. And, of course, he knows that if and when Communisim should arrive, his own salary would never exceed $125 per month, if that; for he would undoubtedly be classed as a "white-collar guy" and be dealt with accordingly.

COMMISSION IS SOON TO STUDY RAIL SITUATION

Manion Says Ottawa Shortly Will Announce Appointment of Board

Canadian Press

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 16.—Hon. R. J. Manion, federal Minister of Railways and Canals, speaking here yesterday evening, said the appointment of a commission of qualified men, "not necessarily all Canadians," would shortly be announced to study Canada's railway situation. They would advise as to remedies for the present condition of duplication, he said. Duplication and competition had placed both the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway in a difficult position at present, he said.

"This situation leaves the Canadian Pacific in the position of not being able to pay the large dividends it usually has paid to shareholders," he said, "and the Canadian National is not in a position to meet interest charges, amounting to more than $10,000,000 a month."

Dr. Manion was addressing the convention of the Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario.

He said Canada had one-third too much railway mileage. The result was the Canadian Pacific was experiencing difficult times and the Canadian National was "a very heavy burden on the people of this country."

GREAT RESOURCES

Dr. Manion closed his speech on a note of optimism. This country possessed immense natural resources, he said. Its banking system was strong and sound, the people were law-abiding; excellent ocean ports dotted the shorelines; unbounded commercial opportunities existed, particularly in the Orient and along the lines of preferential empire trade. While this was not the time to "row the boat" by captious political criticism, likewise it was not the time to pay undue heed to "economic pessimists." There would be no doubt about Canada's future. "Its greatness is still to come," he said.

BIG FUND

Notwithstanding its nature, any plan or policy to combat economic conditions must be contributory, said Dr. Manion. The employees, the employers and the state must contribute. Without elaborating on it, the federal minister said 1 per cent of all the wages and salaries paid annually in Canada would amount to $25,000,000. "What good Canadian," he added, "would object to contributing one dollar of every hundred dollars he earns to protect himself and his fellow Canadians from the tragedy of unemployment? In some such manner, modified according to circumstances, an immense fund could be built up in the full years to protect us in the lean years."

Industry must take a leading part in the battle against depression, continued Dr. Manion. The Dominion, provincial and municipal governments were able to do only so much—after that point other agencies must enter the lists. . . . The Domion this year was spending about $50,000,000 in caring for the unemployed, and this could not continue indefinitely.

ABLEST MEN INVITED

"If our political and economic system is to endure," said Dr. Manion, "the ablest minds in industry, commerce and public life must try to evolve a scheme to avoid the alternating peaks of prosperity and depths of depression, and industry must give its assistance to the fullest. We must, in other words, stop inventing industrial machines which take employment from the hands of the worker and try to develop instead a social machine which will keep our people reasonably employed, and so give us a contented and happy people. This is the best antidote to the poison of communism."

Two B.C. Indians Killed in Crash

New Westminster, Oct. 16.—Two Indians were killed and two seriously injured when the small car in which they were approaching Vancouver hurtled off Tenth Street, near the Jewish Cemetery in Burnaby, and crashed to a gravel pit below at 8 o'clock yesterday evening.

The two men killed were Robert Allard and William Prest. The two injured, Paul Tonny and B. Nalowa, both of Chilliwack, were rushed to the Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster.

AS SLIM AS AT 20

Still Fit and Active at 55

"I have been taking the small doses of Kruschen Salts every morning for the last three years. I wouldn't be without them in the house. I used to suffer with constipation and piles, but am never troubled in that way now. I am 55 years, and as slim as when I was 20. I have to work very hard, as I have my family and an invalid father to attend to, and I always say it's the Kruschen that keeps me fit."—M.S.

There's nothing like hard work and activity for keeping superfluous fat away. The trouble with most folks is finding the necessary energy. That is where Kruschen comes in.

After you have had your daily supply of Kruschen every morning for a couple of weeks you'll get what is known the world over as "That Kruschen Feeling."

The urge for activity will fill your entire being—you'll not be content to sit in the old arm chair after your day's work is done.

You'll feel the spirit of youth within you—what a joyous feeling—you'll want to take long walks, play games and your work will cease to be a hardship—it will become a pleasure.

MANN TRIAL GIVEN JURORS AT NOON TO-DAY

James T. Mann Says Willows Official Persisted in Riding Car Bumper

Mr. Justice Murphy Instructs Assize Jury Dyson's Acts Immaterial

At 3.15 o'clock this afternoon a jury found James T. Mann not guilty on a charge of causing bodily harm to George Dyson.

The Assize Court jury trying James T. Mann on a charge of causing bodily harm to George A. Dyson retired at 12.50 o'clock this afternoon to consider its verdict. The proceedings this morning included evidence by the accused and two other defence witnesses and addresses by Mr. Justice Murphy and counsel.

Charles Stapleton told of seeing Mr. Mann stop his car twice; the second time Mr. Dyson had got off the bumper and stepped clear of the car, but had remounted when the car resumed its progress ahead. He did not see Mr. Dyson fall off, but did see him get up from the ground, apparently unhurt.

C. J. McDowell knew of no restrictions against use of the road traveled by the accused, having used the route a dozen times. There were no entrance and exit signs.

James T. Mann took the stand in his own defence and said he had been in and out of the parking area fifteen times during exhibition week, always using the road taken on the evening the trouble arose. When taking his car from its parking place he noted Mr. Dyson was some distance away, talking to the driver of another car. There was nothing to interfere with his exit, but Mr. Dyson suddenly appeared in front of him, pushing against the front of the car. He stopped, but getting no reply to questions, resumed motion for six feet. He stopped a second time, complained of interference, started and stopped for a third time, after which Mr. Dyson mounted the bumper. Mr. Mann said he made a fourth stop outside the Industrial Building at which time he had protested against obstruction of the road by Mr. Dyson.

Mr. Mann said when he had resumed progress slowly Mr. Dyson clambered back on the bumper and had been carried some distance. He fell off when another stop was made. He did not appear to be hurt. The sudden stop was attributed to wet brakes.

REMEDY FOR INJURY

H. A. Maclean, K.C., defence counsel, in his address to the jury, said an acquittal would not deprive Mr. Dyson of civil remedy for damages for any injuries he may have received.

Gordon A. Cameron, crown prosecutor, said the accused could have "taken Dyson by the scruff of the neck and thrown him off the car, or have called in the police to deal with the matter. Instead he took the law into his own hands." The extent of Mr. Dyson's injuries had no bearing on the case, counsel said.

JURY INSTRUCTED

Mr. Justice Murphy reviewed the charge against Mr. Mann, giving instructions that abrasions or bruises constituted bodily harm. Wanton driving meant driving in such a way as might cause injury, not necessarily with speed. Wilful misconduct was also a factor in the charge and the jury must decided whether there was wanton driving or wilful misconduct or neglect.

The conduct of Dyson was no factor, there being no such thing in criminal law as contributory negligence.

"In Canada we live under a reign of law. We do so because the people are confident that no person will be allowed to take the law in his own hands," His Lordship said.

Summing up the evidence, Mr. Justice Murphy said the accused knew Mr. Dyson was a grounds official. If the jury believed the evidence of Mr. Dyson and Dr. Vye as to his abrasions and attributed those hurts to the fall from Mr. Mann's car, then the element of wilful injury was made out.

"Let Dyson be ever so much at fault, it has no bearing in this matter. This is a question of whether the accused is guilty of wilful misconduct. It is no question of whether the car stopped four or five times or did not. It is a question of whether the accused was willing to injure Dyson; whether his conduct was such that an ordinary man ought to know would result in injury to Dyson. If you believe that, then the accused is guilty," he said.

The fact that there were at least two stops before Dyson was shaken off the car was of importance, indicating that the accused had not acted off-hand. Evidence as to stoppages was most material to the charge of criminal misconduct, as was testimony regarding jerky driving. "You are not to abandon your common sense as to the effect of suddenly stopping a moving vehicle," Judge Murphy instructed. "The fact that Dyson had an absolute chance to get away when the car stopped is no defence against this charge."

RELIEF URGED FOR BURDENED LAND OWNERS

J. H. Beatty, M.P.P., Says New Tax System Needed to Relieve Real Estate

Tells Victoria Real Estate Board of Faults in Present Method

The time is fast coming when the inauguration of a personal property tax will be inevitable and federal legislation will be needed to make it impossible for bond holders to draw dividends without having them included in their income tax statements, James H. Beatty, M.P.P., stated in an address on "The Injustice of Our Methods of Taxation," before the Real Estate Board, at its luncheon today.

"We all know there are many injustices in our taxation system. But it is useless to talk about them, unless we can evolve some method of rectifying them. The land owner as well as other people feel they are overburdened," Mr. Beatty said.

He reminded his hearers that real property owners were bearing a heavy load, while personal property was exempt. In the United States personal property was taxed highly.

The theatregoer here, he said, also paid a tax, although most people did not realize it.

"Since Mr. Jones put on his 1 per cent tax I have found people willing to submit to salary cuts, but they are still averse to Mr. Jones's tax. I think the income tax is entirely justifiable," Mr. Beatty declared.

He felt that land should be assessed on a basis of productivity, not on its present basis.

Turning to the tax on land, Mr. Beatty referred to the heaviness of the burden, which was increased regularly when proprietors were unable to meet their levies when they fell due. Eventually, he continued, many had to let their land revert.

NEARLY PAUPERS

"You know as well as I do that there are many people here now almost paupers, who have paid thousands of dollars out in taxes to the city," he said.

He declared that almost 10 per cent of B.C.'s population was seeking relief now.

Mr. Beatty reminded the board of the increasing levies for various new projects, and added it was the land owner chiefly who had to bear the brunt of the costs.

"What do they get out of it in service?" Mr. Beatty asked.

As a general thing it was the man who paid least in taxes who sought the most from it.

Until the institution of the Jones 1 per cent levy, only 44,000 people of the entire population of British Columbia paid income tax. These people were, to a large extent, the same who paid the federal tax and also land levees.

By compromising with land owners and giving them a chance to pay off taxes at such a rate that they might be able to hold the land, the tax question could be relieved. Foreclosures should be resorted to only as a last resort, he thought.

In Victoria more land owners were needed. More capital should also be invested in land, he felt.

"We have got to step civic borrowing. We should put men in the City Council who have heavily vested interests in land in this city. We must also alter our assessment system," Mr. Beatty said, referring to local problems.

He expressed the conviction that a personal property tax would have to be instituted.

In British Columbia there were ways of evading the income tax on bonds, Mr. Beatty said, adding he thought legislation should be put through by federal authorities in order to prevent this evasion.

PUNISHED SON TOO VIGOROUSLY

William Nurse Convicted of Assaulting His Son; Given Suspended Sentence

While parents have the right to impose corporal punishment on their children they must be reasonable in doing so, otherwise it becomes unlawful, Magistrate George Jay said in the Saanich Police Court yesterday afternoon after admonishing William Nurse for assaulting his son and imposing suspended sentence.

The magistrate said the accused had committed a cowardly act.

"You inflicted injuries for which you might have been held responsible had they been more serious. You shocked the sensibilities of the ladies who saw you and they thought you were unreasonable. I think it was unreasonable," the magistrate said.

If he imposed a fine or jail term it would work a hardship on a family which needed support, the magistrate said, adding he thought suspended sentence would be sufficient in view of the admonishment.

Mr. Nurse claimed he had a right to chastise his own boy, stating, "If the children of Saanich were given a few more lickings there would be fewer unruly children there."

Harold Tait, the prosecutor, said the prosecution did not argue that the chastisement should not have been given, but about the force with which it was administered. A doctor who examined the boy had seen one bruise alone which would have endangered his health, and for this reason the action had been taken.

This evening Major Cooper will meet and address the local staff at the Hudson's Bay store.

He plans to return to Vancouver within a few days and will visit all the company's stores on his way east.

LE MARQUAND FACES HIGHER COURT TRIAL

Charged With Blackmail Attempt on Retired Seattle Lawyer

Letters Demanding $5,000 Alleged to Have Been Sent to Elderly Patient

Evidence regarding an alleged attempt to blackmail John W. Roberts, retired Seattle lawyer, out of $5,000 on the threat that his wife would be informed of an alleged "affair with a lady from S," was outlined in City Police Court this morning when preliminary hearing was held of a charge against James M. A. Le Marquand, manager of Rest Haven Sanitarium, of demanding $5,000 by letter without reasonable cause.

Le Marquand was committed for trial after the hearing.

Three blackmail letters which Mr. Roberts said he had received were read to the court. They demanded the money be sent by cashier's cheque to "Elmer Clays, General Delivery, Vancouver." They were all typewritten, two being on Empress Hotel stationery and a third on plain white paper. All were postmarked from Victoria.

Stuart Henderson appeared for the defence and C. L. Harrison for the prosecution. Nine witnesses were called.

DETECTIVE GIVES EVIDENCE

Detective Henry Jarvis was the first witness, describing the arrest of the accused at the post office. He said he kept observation on letter box No. 204 there and on October 7 at 1.40 o'clock in the afternoon the accused came to the box. The witness was on the inside of the box, in which was a registered letter card. The card was moved. He then followed the accused down to a doorway which the witness opened. The accused went to the stamp wicket and the detective went to the postal order wicket. Leaving the stamp wicket the accused started toward the door and witness stopped him.

SEARCHED ACCUSED

The detective then searched the accused for the registered letter card and the accused said he had not taken it from the box and also remarked about "making a scene." The witness then went to the box and found the ticket lying flat on the bottom. Previously it had been standing against the side of the box.

Detective Jarvis then searched the accused and found the key to box 204, he testified. The accused was taken to police headquarters after that.

Detective Inspector John A. McLellan testified regarding an interview with the accused at police headquarters. He told the accused he was charged with blackmail and gave him the customary warning.

TALK WITH INSPECTOR

The accused asked to speak to witness alone, and then asked if the charge was in the Criminal Code, and was answered in the affirmative. He also requested permission to communicate with Mr. Roberts and was told he could but it would not affect the charge. He asked witness if the statements were true, would it affect the charge, and received a negative reply.

John William Roberts, retired lawyer, 1301 Alaska Building, Seattle, the main prosecution witness, was then called.

Mr. Roberts said he met the accused at Rest Haven Sanitarium where he had been going for the last five years. Mr. Le Marquand had been manager there for the last two years.

Mr. Roberts said he went to the sanitarium on April 5 this year staying until September 5, except for one week.

On September 4, witness said, he received a letter typewritten on Empress Hotel stationery which was handed to him by a lady at the sanitarium, having come through the postoffice in the regular manner as far as he knew.

FIRST LETTER

The envelope was postmarked Victoria and addressed to "Judge J. W. Roberts."

It read as follows:

"Your affair with the lady from S is up. I know enough and have the evidence. How would you like Mrs. R. to get in on this? It would cost you plenty, wouldn't it? Well, pay me five thousand and you're safe. I mean it, too. Am leaving town and won't bother you. I know your Seattle connections. Settle now and play safe. Mail the money by cashier's cheque payable to Elmer Clays, General Delivery, Vancouver, to reach there by next Wednesday, the 9th September."

Mr. Henderson objected to introduction of the letter as evidence but was overruled.

SECOND LETTER

Mr. Roberts said he received a second letter in Seattle on September 16, postmarked from Victoria. He said it had a return address of Elmer Clays, General Delivery, Vancouver, on the back and read:

"What's the idea? No money on the ninth. Elmer Clays, Gen. Del., Vancouver. One more chance, cashier's cheque by Saturday the nineteenth, five thousand. If you fail next communication to Vashon. I have the evidence concerning you and your lady friend from Seattle, as I told you before. Would make a nice newspaper story, wouldn't it? If you play square you're safe and it's worth the money, isn't it? Remember on the 19th."

Mr. Roberts explained that his wife was staying at Vashon Island at that time.

THIRD LETTER

On September 30, Mr. Roberts said he received another letter at Seattle reading in part:

"Your letter received. Now don't get excited about blackmailing letters. They're nothing of the kind and you know it. It's no use bluffing and threatening. I'm giving you a chance to be fair. Don't worry about the money, you'll never miss it. Better not wait, it will cost you more. I'm going to be absolutely honest and fair if you will and you will have no cause for worry.

"If you're sincere show this letter and the others to your wife and have her write me. I'll reply. Perhaps I should have told you more in previous letters. What explanation, for example, would you offer for the evening of August 29 last? Ha! ha!"

Under cross-examination by Mr Henderson. Mr. Roberts said he had been in Seattle thirty-one years, having come from Hutchinson, Kansas, to Seattle in 1900. He retired on January 1, 1928. During his practice of law he had handled many cases but had never handled criminal law.

Mr. Roberts said he would be seventy-two years old in December. He had two married children, one in Seattle and one in Chicago.

WAS NOT AFRAID

"When you got the first letter were you very much afraid?" asked Mr. Henderson.

"Not at all," witness replied.

"Didn't cost you a moment's thought?"

"Yes, it did, because I wondered who would do such a thing."

"Well, was there an affair with a lady?"

"No, none at all."

"Then why did you think about it at all?"

"Well, you would, too, if you got a letter like that. There was a demand for $5,000 there, and a threat to tell something."

"You didn't consider it would have a serious effect?

"No, not on me, but on the man who wrote it if I could find him."

"But you had nothing to worry about if your wife received a letter?"

"Well, it might have caused some suspicion, because I had been away from home some time."

MR. ROBERTS REPLIED

The reply sent by Mr. Roberts to the first letter was then requested by Mr. Henderson and was produced. Mr. Roberts said he had addressed it to Elmer Clays but not to "general delivery" and it came back to him. Later when he replied to the second letter he enclosed a copy of the first letter and registered the letter. This letter, written by Mr. Roberts on C.P.R. stationery while on his way home, denied the affair as alleged and charged Elmer Clays with blackmailing.

CHANGED ADDRESS

James F. Murray, district superintendent of postal service at Vancouver, gave evidence regarding a postcard directed to the postmaster at Vancouver, instructing him to forward letters adressed to "Elmer Clays" to Box 204, Victoria

The next witness was William Hartnell, 500 Obed Avenue, clerk in the registration department at the Post Office. He identified a return registered letter card signed with the name Elmer Clays. He did not know who Elmer Clays was but remembered that the man who signed the card was of sallow complexion with thin cheeks. He only saw him for a few seconds at the wicket.

Walter Henry Liddiard, 1038 Queens Avenue, money-order clerk at the Post Office, identified an application for rental of a post-office box which he had received, but did not remember the person who applied. The application was signed by "Elmer Clays Cadboro Bay, traveler."

Postmaster George H. Gardiner identified registered letter record sheets from the Post Office, having reference to a registered article addressed to Elmer Clays.

KEY IDENTIFIED

Assistant Postmaster Charles E. Ray identified the key taken from the accused by Detecive Jarvis as the one which fitted Box 204 at the Post Office.

Thomas S. Bowett, chaplain at the Rest Haven Sanitarium, said he had known Mr. Le Marquand for fifteen years and had seen his handwriting. He said a signature of James Le Marquand on a post-office box application, dated September, 1929, was in Mr. Le Marquand's writing. Several other sheets of writing he also identified as that of the accused.

Mr. Harrison explained these identifications were made for the purpose of calling expert handwriting evidence.

HANDWRITING EVIDENCE

James H. Beatty, of Sprott-Shaw School, was called as the handwriting expert. He compared the writing on the two exhibits identified by Mr. Bowett with the signature of Elmer Clays on a post office box application. While the writing "Elmer Clays" was evidently disguised he thought it was written by the same person. He linked other exhibits written by Elmer Clays as in the same writing as that of the sheets declared by Mr. Bowett to have been written by Le Marquand.

Mr. Ray was recalled to testify that Box 204 was asigned to Elmer Clays.

Mr. Henderson said he would not call any defence and the magistrate made the formal committal for trial without comment.

Le Marquand was granted bail in the sum of $5,000 in two sureties at the courthouse this afternoon.

General Advance In Wheat Prices Offsets Previous Recessions

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 16—Wheat prices changed their course of the last two days on the Winnipeg grain exchange to-day and at the close advances of from ⅜ to 1¼ cents were shown in the different months. October at 55⅞ made the greatest gain of 1¼. November was up 1⅛ at 56⅛; December ¾ to ⅞ at 55¾ and May ⅝ at 59.

The price advancements, which followed reports of a strong Liverpool market and spasmodic buying in the pit by houses with seaboard connections, practically regained the ground lost during the last couple of sessions. Hedging at various times was offset by ready purchases.

With almost 3,000,000 bushels of wheat being taken in at country points daily for the last week or so, the market has been called upon to absorb a large volume of wheat and its action in the process of finding buyers for this has been surprisingly good.

There was good demand for top grades of cash wheat but offerings were light and only odd small lots changed hands.

Cash interest in coarse grains was confined entirely to the various grades of oats, presumably for export, but offerings here also were light and no sales were confirmed.

Pit trade in all coarse grains was fairly brisk at times and with the exception of flax, values generally were higher in sympathy with wheat.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Oct. 16—Wheat: The wheat market took on a firmer tone to-day, being encouraged by unexpected strength in Liverpool and by a fairly good export business working. Prices advanced about ⅞ cent during the first period and held very steady throughout the day at the advance. Offerings were fairly liberal at times but there was good absorption by outside interests which was understood to cover export sales.

Seaboard estimated export sales at 500,000 bushels but it was generally understood here that sales were larger or close to 1,000,000 bushels, taking into consideration what business was done—from Atlantic seaboard. The business included another cargo worked to China. Houses with seaboard connections were the best buyers of the futures to-day.

In the cash market there was a good demand for most grades. The weather in western Canada continues fine and country marketings are fairly heavy. The weather has been mostly clear the past two days over the winter wheat belt and frost is forecast for to-night in many states.

Winnipeg closed ¾ to 1¼ higher.

Coarse grains: These markets were all strong. There was further export business reported in oats and some inquiry for barley and rye but no sales confirmed. The bulk of the buying in barley appeared to be spreading or against sales of rye, while rye advanced in sympathy with the strength in wheat.

Oats closed ⅝ to ¾ higher. Barley closed 1 to 1⅜ higher. Rye closed ¾ to 1 higher.

Flax—This market was weak, the October closing at the lowest price for the season. There was practically no demand from any quarter. Closing prices were half to 1¾ lower.

Liverpool due ⅛ to ⅝ higher, based on Winnipeg.

CHICAGO

(By Logan & Bryan)

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Wheat: The general tone of the market was firm but the price range was narrow most of the session. Liverpool was strong, closing 1 to 1½ higher with a better milling demand reported. Export business continues good with sales to-day placed at 1,500,000 bushels, mostly Canadian.

The shipping business here was fair and spot markets generally continue firm. Receipts in the far southwest have increased since the recent rally in prices. Weather map showed generally fair conditions with forecast for fair weather generally. The drought in the far southwest has not been broken and is still causing anxiety. Minneapolis stocks decreased 85,000 bushels for the week. Argentine shipments 1,198,000 bushels wheat and from Australia 1,992,000 bushels.

The market in general shows a strong undertone with fair accumulation indicated on the setbacks, with any important constructive developments think wheat would give a good account of itself.

Corn: Trade in corn was moderate with prices not much changed. Firmness in wheat helped the market a little. The shipping demand was of moderate proportions. Country sales were light. Argentine shipments were 8,810,000 bushels. Receipts 134 cars here.

Weather was favorable and indications are for an early movement of new corn in some sections. For present look for a trading market.

Oats were rather firm with moderate buying support. The cash demand was slow. Receipts continue moderately light. At the price think oats are good, long pull proposition.

Rye: Although the trade in rye is small, there is good buying on the setbacks and the position is regarded as decidedly strong, should other grains begin to show any improvement.

BRAZILIAN UP AT MONTREAL

Industrial Alcohol Also Fractionally Higher; Other Issues Unchanged in Light Trading

Montreal, Oct. 16.—Brazilian Traction, foremost of the Montreal Stock Exchange's free issues, took the lead in to-day's trading and staged a small advance. The stock opened at 10¼ and then reacted slightly. During the afternoon it sold up from the day's low point of ten to a par with the opening, where it held a net advance for the day of ¼. Industrial Alcohol was also firmer, gaining fractionally.

Elsewhere throughout the list, stocks were practically unchanged and trading was at a low level. International Nickel held unchanged at ten.

Canada Cement preferred lost some of its recent strength, selling off ¼ during the afternoon to 66½, although at this price it was still ½ above the minimum level fixed by the exchange.

Massey-Harris showed a loss for the greater part of the session, but in the trading of the last few minutes it was back to two, unchanged for the day. Being under $3 in value, the stock has now no minimum level. A new low of 1⅜ was struck this morning.

TORONTO MINES ERRATIC TO-DAY

Prices Fluctuate Within Narrow Range; High-grade Golds Under Light Pressure

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Stock prices fluctuated aimlessly within a narrow range to an irregular close on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day.

Among the higher-priced gold stocks McIntyre and Teck Hughes dipped 25 apiece, the latter appearing to be under light selling pressure. Lakeshore turned over in the afternoon at 26.50 for a gain of 50, and Wright Hargreaves and Nipissing advanced 5 each.

In the cheaper sections Macassa and Premier Gold lost 3 apiece, Siscoe a cent and Brownlee and Moffatt-Hall fractions, while Eldorado and Moss recorded slight gains.

Noranda met improved demand in the afternoon and closed up 35, but International Nickel and other interlisted stocks were just holding in dull turnover.

STEADY TONE IN LONDON

Transatlantics and German Bonds Improved in Sympathy With Wall Street

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 16—The stock exchange had a steady undertone to-day, although the volume of business was small. German bonds were better and transatlantics improved in sympathy with Wall Street.

Hydro-electric was $11, International Nickel $11⅝, Brazilian Traction $12⅜ and Radio $16½. The increase in the rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York had little effect, since money rates here are higher than in New York.

TORONTO STOCK FIRMER TO-DAY

Small Gains Scored By Majority of Pivotal Issues in Slow Session

Canadian Press

Toronto, Oct. 16—Toronto Stock Exchange market was somewhat firmer in the afternoon and small gains were shown by majority of pivotal issues. The volume, while slightly improved in the afternoon over the forenoon, nevertheless indicated a lack of public interest.

Massey-Harris supplied most activity of any individual issues. The stock dropped to a new record low of 1⅜, then firmed to 1¾ at the close.

Brazilian Traction at 10¼, C.P.R. just above 16, Ford of Canada at 12¾, International Nickel at 10, were all up ½ point or less.

Dominion Stores was off slightly at 17. B.A. Oil sold under 9 and Imperial at 10¼ was below last night's final.

Suggests Whale Shape For Arctic Submarine

Quebec Veteran of the Seas, Says Sir Hubert Wilkins, Should Follow Route of Whales Across Arctic Wastes

Canadian Press

Quebec, Oct. 16.—From the hoarded experience of sixty years as seaman and explorer in the Arctic regions, Capt. Joseph E. Bernier of Levis, Quebec, recently voiced reasons for the failure of Sir Hubert Wilkins's attempt to reach the North Pole in the submarine Nautilus, and suggested new lines of action for a future undersea expedition to the Pole.

"Capt. Wilkins should build his next submarine — if he wants to try again—the same shape as a whale," Capt. Bernier said. "It would have to be built so that where it was impossible to find enough room in the ice for the whole ship to come to the surface, the bow or head of it, at least, might come up to enable the air supply to be replenished, just as a whale to fill its lungs."

Capt. Bernier advised Sir Hubert to study the movements of whales and whalers in the northern seas, as indicating the most advantageous line of movement north. The hardest point of any northern expedition, he pointed out, was reached at the line where the Atlantic tide flowing into the Arctic met the Pacific tide from Behring Straits, yet it had been proved that whales had successfully crossed this line by study of their habits and lives in the two oceans.

FOLLOW WHALES

"A whale with an American harpoon buried into it in the Behring Sea, has been found in the North Atlantic Ocean," Capt. Bernier added. He declared that the best lines for any future undersea expedition to follow would be that taken by the whales, from the North Atlantic Ocean towards the Pacific, across the seas bounding the north of Siberia. "History shows that this is what the whaler used to do, and he was thus able to travel a very long way north," he said. "The right direction can be told while traveling by the formation of barnacles and coral in the waves where the two tides meet," he added, "and as far as that the tracks of the whales can be followed."

Sir Hubert Wilkins had evidently realized that the Nautilus was absolutely unfitted for the daring attempt which had been made in her, Capt. Bernier declared, and he strongly approved and endorsed the attitude of the United States Government in ordering that the submarine be sunk when the scientific instruments and valuable equipment had been removed from it. "The submarine was too old and totally unfit for the work she was wanted to do," Capt. Bernier said.

"I hope Sir Hubert perseveres in his gallant endeavour, and that next time he reaches his destination in safety," the rugged, eighty-year-old veteran of northern seas stated. He added that such an expedition as that taken by the Nautilus would be of very great value to seafaring men, as it would enable new measurements to be taken of the depths of the Arctic Ocean, and the publication of valuable data on the habits and lives of the fish and animals found in the icy regions of the north."

"I am glad to have the opportunity of giving a word or two of advice to Sir Hubert," Capt. Bernier concluded, "for I know it was the advice I received from older men than myself that enabled me to carry out my expeditions into the far north with safety and success."

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription — HEM-ROID —to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. McFarlane Drug Store and Vancouver Drug Co. says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back. (Advt.)

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—Unofficial reports in shipping circles here yesterday were that the recent conferences of several of the larger United States steamship companies, seeking a way to lessen cut-throat competition in inter-coastal traffic, will be revived in New York.

It was said here the Dollar Line has clung to its position as a competitor in the trade, though willing to make concessions to lessen the waste involved for all companies. The company is said to have maintained the inter-coastal service is a vital part of its round-the-world business.

Bids on contracts to repair and alter two former Trans-marine Line steamers, Suvalico and Sunugenteo, will be opened to-morrow by the California and Portland Steamship Company, purchasers of the vessels. The line is a subsidy of the Dollar Line. Names of the ships will be changed before they are returned to service.

Much Local Interest In Coming Voyages Of C.N. Liners to Indies

Prince Henry to Sail From Victoria November 22 and Prince David December 13

Much local interest has been aroused in the cruises of the Canadian National steamers Prince Henry and Prince David from Victoria and Vancouver to the West Indies and Boston next month and December, and it is probable both ships will take capacity lists of passengers, including several from Victoria. Such a trip, giving twenty-three days at sea and including a number of interesting ports of call, is bound to appeal to the traveler seeking something new.

The Prince Henry will be the first of the two fine steamers to leave for the Indies. She will sail from Victoria at noon on Sunday, November 22, and will proceed from here to San Francisco, later calling at Manzanillo, Mexico, on her way to the Panama Canal, where a stop will be made at Balboa, at the Pacific entrance to the Canal and at Cristobal, at the other entrance. From Balboa the passengers will make the short trip into quaint old Panama City, and spend a night in an old world setting.

After the canal will come Havana, known as the "Paris of the West." The cruise will terminate at Boston. The Prince Henry will make a series of trips from Boston to the West Indies before returning to British Columbia in the spring to operate again on the Vancouver-Alaska run.

The Prince David will sail from Victoria at noon on Sunday, December 13, and will call at practically the same ports. This cruise will be unique because the passengers will spend Christmas day at sea somewhere down in the Panama Canal region.

Dr. Myers is well known on the Pacific Coast, being a frequent contributor to magazines and a popular lecturer on current topics.

NEW COMPANY TO OFFER BID ON U.S. LINES

Dollar-Chapman-Dawson Interests Hope to Acquire Government Fleet

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—Formation of the United States Lines Company, an organization to purchase the United States lines for the Dollar-Chapman-Dawson shipping interests, was announced here to-day by William F. Humphrey, attorney for Herbert Fleischhacker, capitalist.

The company, formed in Nevada, will act as holding corporations for the United States Lines, Humphrey said yesterday evening and permit the joint purchase of the lines from the United States Shipping Board by the combined interests of the Dollar Steamship Company, Paul Chapman, president of the United States Lines; Kenneth D. Dawson, Portland shipping magnate, and Fleischhacker.

It was not revealed in announcement of the syndicate how much, if any, interest eastern shippers, represented by the International Mercantile Marine and the Roosevelt Lines, would have in the United States Lines Company.

WEST CUSSETA LOADING LUMBER; BONNEVILLE DUE

The freighter West Cusseta is still alongside the Ogden Point piers loading 960,000 feet of Vancouver Island timber for ports in South Africa. She has been here since last Saturday, and it will probably be Sunday afternoon before she proceeds to Vancouver to finish loading before putting to sea on her long voyage. The Cusseta first discharged 500 tons of corn at the Rithet piers, and was then fumigated before she commenced loading lumber.

The Norwegian motorship Bonneville is expected at Ogden Point over the week-end to reload the lumber parcel she left three weeks ago before entering the government drydock at Esquimalt for repairs by Yarrow's Limited. It is expected she will be floated out of the dock late this afternoon, and will go over to the Yarrow outfitting wharf for finishing touches before proceeding to the ocean piers.

SEATTLE SHIPPING

In addition to the sailings Monday, three vessels will clear with 115,000 cases of apples for European and United Kingdom ports within the following ten days.

PACIFIC RATES TO BE REDUCED

Travel on Transpacific Liners Will Be Cheaper Starting November 15

Passenger fares on transpacific liners have again been slashed and effective November 15, the round-trip fare between Pacific Northwest ports and the Orient will be a one-way fare and three-quarters.

According to a message received in Victoria this morning from Montreal, savings of 12½ per cent on the present round-trip fare between Canada and the Orient were announced at the headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Steamships yesterday. The announcement stated the Empress of Japan, the Empress of Canada, the Empress of Asia and the Empress of Russia will institute minimum round-trip fares based on first-class one-way fare and three-quarters for the round trip. The new rates are equally effective east or westbound.

The same rates will also apply to the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liners operating on the Pacific. Although no word has yet been received from the American Mail and Dollar lines, it is thought probably these interests have also agreed to reduce their rates and in this way boost travel to the Far East.

The usual summer tourist rates will go into effect April 1.

CATTLE STAMPEDE ON FREIGHTER AND ARE LOST AT SEA

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Oct. 16.—The cattle boat Genevieve Lykes, her starboard rail awash with a heavy list, arrived here yesterday and her crew told of a mad night at sea during which a thousand frightened steers had broken from their deck pens, stampeded and left behind the ship a trial of drowning beasts.

The animals became restless Wednesday night, the ship's officers said. When they broke loose many of them were gored or trampled to death and others were shoved overboard. Several seamen suffered minor injuries before the remaining animals were herded back into their pens.

PLANES REACH SS. BAYCHIMO FROZEN IN ICE

Will Bring Out Passengers and Valuable Furs to Nome; Crew Faces Long Winter

Nome, Alaska, Oct. 16.—Airplanes yesterday reached the steamer Baychimo, frozen in the ice several hundred miles north of here, near Wainwright, messages received here said, and the "rescue" of a number of passengers who faced a winter in the Arctic was begun. The captain and crew will remain aboard all winter.

The planes, Northern Air Transport cabin ships, flown by Pilots Vic Ross and Chester Brown, arrived near the Baychimo yesterday morning. The Baychimo, a Hudson's Bay Company ship, was caught in the ice pack several weeks ago.

A number of passengers and their baggage were loaded on the planes, the message said, and a flight of between 250 and 300 miles to Kotzebue started yesterday afternoon.

A third plane, which left here Wednesday, was forced back by bad weather, but flew to Kotzebue yesterday to aid in bringing the passengers here.

In addition to the passengers aboard the ship, a large supply of Arctic furs, the catch of natives in the Point Barrow district during the past year, will be flown from the marooned vessel.

From Kotzebue the passengers and furs will be brought here in time to catch the steamer Victoria on its last southbound trip of the season to Seattle. A four-inch snowfall covered the ground here yesterday.

The Baychimo was one of three vessels to reach Point Barrow during the month-long season when that port was free of ice this summer, but delayed its start back south too long.

RAIL BOARD COMES SOUTH

Prince Rupert, B.C., Oct. 16. — The Railway Commission, headed by Chairman Fullerton, to-day was voyaging to Vancouver. It held a sitting here yesterday at which permission was given to fill in part of Cow Bay adjoining trackage and to lay a level crossing near the drydock yards. The commissioners sailed for the south yesterday evening.

PILOT SUING WILLY RODY FOR SALARY

Hamburg, Oct. 16 — Captain Johannsen, German flier, fixed the piloting charges from Lisbon to a point in the Atlantic off Cape Race, Newfoundland, at 5,000 marks (about $1,200).

He is suing Willy Rody, his companion, in a Hamburg court for that amount as wages on their attempted flight to New York in September. With Fernando de Costa Viega, they were forced down by lack of fuel, floated for more than six days and were rescued by a passing vessel.

Rody is resisting the charge.

Nippon Yusen Kaisha Ms. Heian Maru was three hours late in sailing for the Orient yesterday. The delay was necessary to load a large consignment of frozen fish into the ship's refrigerator chambers. She sailed with a full cargo and has more than 200 passengers, of whom 125 embarked here.

Included in her cargo were 300 R. O. P. hens, ranging in value from ten dollars to fifty dolars each, and three yearling holstein bulls, valued at $15,000.

NEW DOLLAR LINER SAILS

Ss. President Coolidge Got Away Yesterday From N.Y. For California and Orient

New York, Oct. 16.—Off on her maiden voyage through the Panama Canal to California and then across the Pacific to the Orient, the new Dollar liner President Coolidge sailed from New York yesterday afternoon, with a full list of passengers. She was given a regal send-off and as she made her way slowly down the river to the open sea, her great hull against the waterfront's proud array of skyscrapers, whistles and sirens tooted and wished her bon voyage and fair weather on all trips.

The President Coolidge is a sister ship to the liner President Hoover, which is now returning to San Francisco from her first visit to the Orient. The Coolidge will arrive at San Francisco November 2 and will then set out for the Orient, going as far south as Manila. She will return to New York January 16, the trip taking three months. Capt. K. A. Ahlin, formerly master of the transpacific ships sailing between Victoria, B.C., Seattle and the Orient, has command of the President Coolidge.

One of the greatest ships ever built in a United States shipyard, the Coolidge is bound to win favor with travelers from all parts of the world. Luxuriously appointed, she is the acme of comfort and has all the latest conveniences and novelties. She has accommodation for close to 1,000 passengers, half of this number being accommodated in the fine tourist class, which will cater to students, teachers and pleasure travelers of moderate means.

The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the tables, the tide rises or fall continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of low water.

Gems of Peril

by HAZEL ROSS HAILEY

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

Dirk had moved off obediently. She saw his dark head threading its way among the throng, saw Cornelia leave the man she was talking to and move off with him, looking terribly pleased. Swift, unreasoning jealousy smote her; need he have taken her quite so literally at her word?

She mustn't stand here, being jealous where everybody could see her. What was it she had come over here for? Then she remembered. Putting those two out of her mind, she went toward the telephone, a strange uneasiness clutching at her heart.

Mary turned away from the telephone with deep misgivings. The few frightened, jerky sentences her brother had gasped out filled her with alarm that grew deeper the more she thought about it.

Something must be very wrong indeed to have upset her brother's cool self-possession in any such manner. If there was anything Mr. Edward Harkness Junior had prided himself on since his prep school days, it was his nonchalance. "A man of the world"—that was Eddie, always. What could have agitated him so?

Mary sat still for a moment, trying to think what the trouble might be. All that betting on horse races—it was gambling, of course, and against the law. Eddie had had one or two skirmishes with the police before for the unconventional manner in which he drove his roadster. It might be that—he might have struck somebody, and be running away. The police might be after him. The very thought left her sick with shame and fright. Or he might need money. She tried to think how much she had.

"I'll be there in ten minutes. Tell the doorman I'm coming and to let me in." Well, what could she do? She had told him to come ahead, but to come round to the side door; she would leave word that he was to be admitted. He could go right up to her room, and she would go later and see what was up.

That she had done wrong in permitting him to come here, to seek sanctuary in the Jupiters' house, without asking their consent, did not occur to her at the moment. It was only afterward, as she sat thinking it over, that she thought about that. But where else could Eddie go, if he were in trouble? They had no home, the two of them; she felt the shame of that.

She got up and went back to the ballroom. She must find Mrs. Jupiter or her husband right away and tell them what she had done. She did not really believe that either of them would mind.

Afterward, there seemed to be no reason for what she did during the next few minutes—or for what she failed to do. Even to herself, wild with regret and self-accusation, it seemed as if she might have told somebody—found someone to share with her the awful responsibility for what came after. But at the time her reasons seemed excellent. What she did seemed the only thing to do.

The floor had cleared during an interval in the dancing and across the room she caught sight of Mrs. Jupiter, magnificent in gold lame and far too many jewels, seated on a divan, watching the dancing with a listless eye. At her side, Mary noticed just in time to check her forward progress, was Dirk's mother, a pale woman in gray chiffon who seemed to be thinking "Rather a nice party—but horribly overdone!"

It would have been easy to go at once to Mrs. Jupiter and tell her her troubles, if it had not been for Mrs. Ruyther. She was, Mary had to admit to herself, a congenial snob, and a priggish one. With Dirk for a son, she would never be able to understand Eddie's peccadilos, or condone them. And Mary felt miserably that she had little enough to bring to her union with the impeccable Ruyther family—just herself and a name that had never been brought to shame. If that scant dowry was in danger Mrs. Ruyther must not know.

Mrs. Jupiter did not look any too happy; she looked tired and uncomfortable. The strain of being nice to Mrs. Ruyther was telling on her naturally jolly disposition. From the grimaces she made from time to time, Mary judged with amusement that her shoes hurt, into the bargain.

No, she would not add her own trouble to those from which that poor old woman was already suffering.

Mr. Jupiter would be somewhere about—he would be better able to tell her what to do than his wife would. Mr. Jupiter absented himself from the social scene as much as possible; she knew she would find him outside somewhere, roaming around the grounds, smoking, listening to the music as it filtered out to him, mercifully mellowed by distance. She would go out by way of the terrace, and look all 'round the house.

As she moved cautiously along the wall, avoiding the heels and elbows of the swooping couples as best she could, she had to pause once to rub tenderly an ankle-bone which had been the target for somebody's French heel. As she looked up she saw just ahead of her, in the corner, Dirk and Cornelia dancing—if they were dancing. They seemed hardly to move at all.

But what was odd was that Cornelia was crying. Mary could see it even though Dirk's back was toward her, shielding the girl from curious eyes. Once he looked about worriedly and she saw that he looked white and strained.

Well! That was a surprise. She hadn't thought Cornelia cared that much, enough to make a spectacle of herself.

What in the world should she do—go forward and let them know she had seen? Her first impulse was to rescue Dirk there and then. Let Cornelia go and cry on somebody else; there were dozens of men present who would gladly dry the tears of the heiress to so many millions. Dirk must feel an awful brute. And that wasn't fair.

On second thought, that would merely make Cornelia hate her. But Cornelia hated her anyhow as it was.

As she hesitated, Dirk evidently resolved to get Cornelia away before she made a complete fool of herself; holding her arm firmly, he moved with her toward the wide door opening on the terrace. She reached the door just in time to see them step outside the circle of light from the doorway and disappear into the dark grounds.

Mary could have stamped her foot with annoyance—if it had not already hurt. She could not follow them out there, even if her errand were looking for Mr. Jupiter. It would be too much like spying. People would see, and what would they think? She knew what Cornelia would think, if she bumped into them accidentally—that she was jealous. She wouldn't give her the satisfaction. No, indeed! They could have the terrace all to themselves.

Swiftly she turned into the flagged corridor which ran along the side of the house to the conservatory, and let into the back hall. She hadn't too much time. Better make her arrangements first, and tell the Jupiters afterward. She was so sure of their understanding that it hardly seemed necessary anyhow. So she intercepted one of the maids—Bessie, the comeliest, and therefore assigned to parlor duty—and told her a man would be coming to the side door presently, and to be sure to let him in. Bessie said, "Yes, Miss Mary," and scurried on. She was carrying drinks out to the chauffeurs, who were clustered about a big car in the back driveway, talking.

Mary smiled—she knew with certainty now where Mr. Jupiter was. It was one of the favorite occupations of the old automobile manufacturer, talking with the men who drove cars. Other officials of the Jupiter Motor Company, Incorporated, were only too well aware of it. Whenever they put forward ideas about the Jupiter motor which did not coincide with his sentiments, he was wont to stop all argument by yelling, "And where did you get your information? I'll tell you where I got mine—from the men themselves!"

He had been an automobile mechanic once and it was his boast that he was still one—just that, and nothing more. They might know about stock issues, and the like of that, but he knew carburetors. When he was in that mood, there was nothing more to be said.

His interest in motors and in the men who drove them was genuine enough: their talk was his talk. But his wife, among others, thought he sometimes carried it too far. He judged a man by the way he treated a car, for example. Many a friend's chauffeur, and even some taxi-drivers he had taken a liking to, were now holding good jobs in his plant. On the same basis, he had never really warmed up to Eddie. Mary remembered. Eddie was known as a "wild driver," and that was enough for Mr. J. If it was that again that had gotten Eddie into trouble—

Mary paused, pinching her lower lip thoughtfully between thumb and finger.

She resolved presently that this was a family matter, and why bother anyone with it except herself? It really seemed the kindest thing to everyone concerned—just to say nothing about it. Later, it might seem very different to other people, but she could not know that then.

* * *

Mr. Jupiter was sitting on the running-board of a limousine, surrounded by a group of "his boys." Some of them looked as if they would like to break away and start a crap game, but were afraid to suggest it. She could hear his voice droning on and on. He was having a good time.

A big, foreign-looking limousine stopped a second under the portico, then shot around the circular drive and out again, at a high rate of speed. The uniformed drivers all looked up interestedly, as it circled, then went on listening in respectful silence to the old man's words.

Horoscope

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1931

According to astrology this is an unfortunate day in planetary direction. Adverse stars seem to rule. The early morning is under a good sign for thinkers, who may find the sway helpful in research work or in making plans for the winter.

It is read as a lucky day for beginning an ocean voyage. Much foreign travel is indicated for the next few months.

Under this planetary government there may be a tendency to look on the dark side of life. A mental attitude that is cheerful should be maintained. Danger of labor troubles is augmented under this sway, which is believed to emphasize discontent.

Mars may cause much agitation in New York City next month, when exposures of crime and corruption again will arouse the people to protest.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of unexpected experiences. Friends will be helpful.

Children born on this day probably will show marked ability. Many subjects of this sign seek public service.

Robert Lansing, American statesman, was born on this day, 1864. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Richard Mentor Johnson, 1780, Vice-president of the United States, and Bruce Crane, 1857, painter.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily And Kittie's Piece

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

One day, when Uncle Wiggily was hopping past the house where Kittie Kat lived with her brothers, Joie and Tommie, the rabbit gentleman heard a sad voice saying:

"Oh, I never can learn it! I never can learn it! I know I never can learn it, and what shall I do?"

"Dear me," murmured Mr. Longears, stopping so suddenly that he almost jumped out of his shoes; "that sounds like trouble. I must see if I can be of any help."

For that was one of Uncle Wiggily's little jokes. He was always glad to help those in trouble, but he got into more trouble himself than all the rest of the animals together. Only, as you know, Uncle Wiggily also had a way of getting out of trouble.

Hopping over to the house where the pussy cat children lived with their father and mother, Mr. Longears again heard a voice saying:

"Oh, I never can learn it, mother!"

"Who is it that can't learn what?" asked Uncle Wiggily, which sounds like a funny question, but it was just what he wanted to know.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, perhaps you can help me!" mewed Kittie Kat, and she stepped softly over to the side of the rabbit gentleman. In her paw Kittie held a book.

"What's the trouble?" asked Mr. Longears with a smile that made his pink nose twinkle like a star on a frosty night. "What's the trouble, Kittie, my dear?"

"Oh, she has to learn a piece to speak in school next Friday," answered Mrs. Kat, "and she thinks she never can remember it."

"Oh, I know I'll never remember it!" sighed Kittie. "I've been over and over this piece in the book," she went on. "I can learn the first few lines, but when I put the book away and start to say them all by myself they slip right out of my head or else I get them all twisted and wrong. Oh, dear!"

"What piece is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily, kindly.

"Oh, it's that piece about 'Once a trap was cheesed with a little mouse,' there. I know I'd get it wrong!" and Kittie nearly cried.

"I guess," said Mr. Longears with a laugh, "you mean the piece about 'Once a trap was baited with a piece of cheese,' don't you?"

"Yes, that's it," Kittie mewed. "But I can't seem to get it by heart. And I should feel so ashamed if I got up before the whole school next Friday and couldn't remember. It would be awful!"

"Not so bad as you think," Uncle Wiggily said. "But I'll help you learn this piece, Kittie. Bring the book and we'll go out and sit under the grapevine. You'll soon get it by heart!"

With Uncle Wiggily's kind help, going over and over each verse, Kittie learned the piece fairly well. There was one verse about a trap being baited with a piece of cheese and catching a little mouse, and there was another verse about a robin that wanted to leave the nest and go into the house where he was caught.

"Now let me see if you have the piece by heart, Kittie," said Uncle Wiggily, after about an hour. Taking the book, which Kittie had been looking at, Mr. Longears listened and Kittie went through the whole recitation beautifully.

"If I can only do it that way on Friday!" she mewed, "I'll be happy."

"Oh, you'll do it all right," said Uncle Wiggily.

Friday came. Several animal children spoke their pieces and then it was the turn of Kittie Kat. She went up on the platform where sat the Lady Mouse Teacher, made her best bow and began:

"Once a trap was baited with a piece of cheese. It tickled so a little mouse it almost made him—"

And then, all of a sudden, Kittie forgot all she had learned. The whole piece seemed to slip out of her mind. Oh, how sad, unhappy and ashamed she felt! She began again. "Once a trap was baited," but when she got to "It almost made him—" she could not remember. Kittie was going to cry, but just then Uncle Wiggily, who had come to hear Kittie speak her piece felt his nose tickle and he sneezed. And that was the very word Kittie could not remember.

Now, suddenly, it came to her—the whole piece came back to her and she went on bravely: "Once a trap was baited with a piece of cheese. It tickled so a little mouse it almost made him sneeze!" And from there Kittie Kat went right on and finished her piece beautifully.

"Well done, Kittie!" squeaked the Teacher, and everybody was happy.

So if the mud turtle will stop crawling around in the kitchen to see the coffee cup ride in the tea saucer, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's talking stone.

Unpaid Chicago Teachers Discuss Closing of Schools

Chicago, Oct. 16.—A proposal to close Chicago's schools for lack of money is being considered by some of the city's army of 14,000 public school instructors.

The proposal was advanced yesterday by Clyde A. Crowley, one of the thousands of Chicago's teachers who have not received any real money for their services since last spring due to a tax muddle. Instead they have been paid until recently in scrip, acceptable in exchange for merchandise at some Chicago stores.

F. E. Murphy of Minneapolis Tells of Minnesota Plan's Ten Years' Gains

New York, Oct. 16. — Canadian farmers and business men may well study the results of the Minnesota Plan, which raised farm income in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana by seven hundred million dollars in eight years, an average of $1,679 per farm, according to Frederick E. Murphy, sponsor of the plan and publisher of The Minneapolis Tribune, now directing an educational effort from New York to interest the business leaders of the country in agriculture.

"Canadian prosperity," said Mr. Murphy, "is as vital to us as our own because of her great volume of trade with us. In the United States industrial leaders are beginning to realize the nation cannot prosper unless the 29,000,000 people living on our farms prosper. The lessons of the Minnesota Plan are now being studied in a number of states, Georgia, Washington, Texas, the Carolinas, Maryland and New England. National magazines like The Outlook and The Literary Digest, newspapers from the Atlantic to the Pacific, national agricultural officials and farm leaders have written and spoken of the results accomplished in the ten years since the plan was launched in the northwest.

BRANCHED OUT

"Our particular cure in the northwest was in getting away from dependence on cash grain, and into dairying, livestock and general farming. Obviously this can not be the solution in all regions. But the gist of the Minnesota Plan can be applied to Canada as well as the several states where similar plans have recently been launched.

"We started in 1921 by studying the methods used on the 200 most successful farms in each region. Then we urged the spread of those methods to the rest of the farms. Because the farmers were unable to get money, we organized a $10,000,000 loan fund and the government promised $100,000,000 extra credit from the War Finance Corporation if we needed it.

"In 1921 northwestern banks were failing in waves. The fund stopped the failures. Then it financed individual farmers in the purchase of cows, livestock and sheep and enabled them to shift over from old style cash crops to farming which paid them incomes every month through the year. We loaned the farmer money with the livestock and its increase as our sole security. Yet from the livestock the farmer earned the money to pay off the loan. Fourteen thousand farmers have been helped by loans already. And when the country banks saw the loans were safe, they began making them and thousands of additional farmers were helped over the hump to business-like farming."

Mr. Murphy, himself operator of a 6,000-acre dairy farm in the Red River Valley, formerly devoted to wheat, specializes in Holstein-Freasian cows and his herds hold world records for production.

RAISING OWN FOOD

"One of our first steps in the northwest," he said, "was to get the farmers to raise their own food. Thousands of our wheat farms were without cows, pigs and chickens. And they did not even have gardens. Yet the average grocery bill was $800 a year. That is all changed now.

"In eight years our four states gained 228,000 cows. The rest of the country put together only gained 283,000 cows. We have raised our dairy income 55 per cent since 1921 until it is a $300,000,000 income producer. Our cow-sow-hen income boosted farm profits 71 per cent since 1921, an average gain of $95,000,000 a year. And in 1930, in spite of low farm prices, our farm income held 34 per cent above 1921.

"To-day, in spite of grasshoppers and drought in 6.3 per cent of our area, the farm prosperity of the northwest has held the whole business tone of the northwest high. The Federal Reserve Bank survey of retail business during the first six months of 1931 shows the northwest second highest in the nation and only 2 per cent behind the leading district centring at Richmond, Virginia. Out of 185,475 farmers in Minnesota last year, only 185 went bankrupt, according to the last year book of the Department of Agriculture. And industrial failures of firms worth $5,000 or more, were only 0.96 per cent in Minnesota, 0.39 per cent in South Dakota, 0.49 per cent in North Dakota, as against such figures as 2.24 per cent for Illinois and 3.70 per cent for New York.

"Wheat is no longer the index of our prosperity. In Minnesota, known as the bread basket of the United States, our wheat acreage has been cut down for over four years so that wheat has only yielded one-fourth of what the chicken crop brings in.

"The beauty of the Minnesota Plan is that the farmers, instead of being paid unskilled labor's wages, represented by wheat growing, get skilled labor's pay represented by proper breeding of livestock, scientific farming and proper marketing. And instead of taking the beating which the varying price of raw crops such as wheat or cotton involves, they get the relatively steadier and much higher prices for finished products, butter, eggs, meats, fruits, vegetables and general crops.

"In the northwest we have seen the results of this plan in the 300 per cent increase of our market for automobiles and in increased sales of all manufactured goods," said Mr. Murphy. "If the business leaders of North America but stop to realize it, this undeveloped purchasing power of the millions of farms offers them much bigger and more important markets than any export trade outside national borders. It is about time the people found the only real road back to prosperity. That road is on the farms of America."

Why Is a Man? | Dorothy Dix | Explains Conundrum to Women

"Men Are One Thing to Men and Another Thing To Women, and That Is Why No Woman Can Understand a Man, Any More Than a Man Can Understand a Woman," Says Dorothy Dix

A DESPAIRING WOMAN asks: "Why are men like they are? Why do they think they are so superior to women and so much stronger than women and then demand more of women than they demand of themselves or any other man? Why do they blame everything that goes wrong 'on the wife'? Why are they so selfish, stubborn and contrary? Why is a man, anyway?"

Well, women had to have somebody to marry, did not they? So the Good Lord provided man, which, though not entirely satisfactory and in need of many repairs and improvements, still fills the bill as a husband fairly well. At any rate he is better than any of the synthetic substitutes that feminine ingenuity has been able to devise, and it is observable that those ladies who have espoused careers or who are wedded to their art or who have entered into partnerships in business concerns are perfectly willing to scrap these alliances when a real live husband appears in the offing. A man is something a woman cannot be happy without, even though she is miserable with him.

And if men were better, they would be worse as husbands, if you get what I mean, because no woman could endure to live with a godling who had no faults nor weaknesses, who was never swayed by prejudices nor passions and who was always right about everything—who was really as superior and wise as a lot of men think they are.

What congeniality could there be between a poor, frail, human woman and a perfect man? We may admire people for their virtues, but we love them for their foibles and it is only after a wife has forgiven her husband ninety-and-nine times that she begins to feel really tender and protective toward him, that she really gets the mother feeling that makes her blind to his shortcomings.

The reason that men demand more of a woman than they do of themselves and other men is because they never take a woman seriously and they think she is built along different lines, anyway, and that things do not affect her as they do them. A husky, able-bodied man knows, for instance, that taking care of the children for a single Sunday afternoon reduces him to a mental and physical wreck, but he thinks it is just fun and play for a frail little woman to do it six days a week and he says that by jove he wishes he did not have anything to do but stay at home and do the housework and look after the children.

And every man expects a woman to be twice as good as he is, because he has the idea that she is not subject to temptation as he is and that she has no spirit of adventure in her and that she is never lured by the primrose path, or feels the urge of the flesh, and that the most she ever wants to say when she smashes her thumb when she is hanging a picture is, "Oh, fudge!"

And, of course, the reason men always blame the wife is because it is a hereditary trait that has come down to them from their first male ancestor. Besides, it is the perfect alibi for everything they do and do not do. It saves their faces and without doubt it is the convenience of having a goat handy in the family that drives many men into matrimony.

So that is that, but, still and all, men are funny in their dealings with women, and why they do as they do is something no woman has ever found out. For example:

Before marriage a man will spend every evening in a girl's home telling her how beautiful and wonderful she is and how different from every other woman and listening with absorbed interest to everything she says. Apparently he finds her congenial and interesting and a fascinating companion.

But as soon as they are married and she expects him to settle down across the bridge lamp from her, he beats it away from home as often as he can, yet his wife has exactly the same amount of brains and carries the same line of conversation and has the same little tricks and manners after marriage as she did before.

A man will marry a woman for one thing and expect her to turn into the exact opposite as soon as the wedding ceremony is over. He will marry a girl because she is gay and frivolous and knows nothing on earth except how to dance the Charleston and expect her to turn into a serious, sedate and helpful wife who is a good cook and dime-nurser. man who is a scholar will marry a Dumb Dora who never even read a best seller and expects her to be an intellectual companion to him.

A man will work himself to death to give his wife fine clothes and a handsome home and a high-powered car, but he will never pay her a compliment, or tell her that he loves her, or show her any little tenderness, although he knows that she is just eating her heart out with longing for some sign of affection from him and that she would rather he would jolly her along than give her all the money in the world. He knows that a few soft words would make her happy and he never says them.

Men are often lavishly generous to women, but seldom just. Men like to make women presents, but they hate to pay them what is coming to them. Many a man who refuses to give his wife an allowance lavishes real pearls upon her. Many a wife who never has a nickel in her purse has a charge account at every store in town.

The man abroad and the man at home are as different animals as a lion and a lamb. Many a man who is a heroic and commanding figure abroad is a peevish little boy at home. Many a general who commands armies is scared to death of some little two-by-four wife. Many a man who opens champagne for chorus girls howls over the baby's milk bill.

And so it goes. Men are one thing to men and another thing to women. And that is why no woman can ever understand a man any more than a man can understand a woman.

Glimpses of Japan

RELIGIOUS IDEAS

The Japanase pay great honor to their dead. According to the old Shinto faith, a person who dies becomes "one of the gods."

Japanese Nuns

The Shinto faith sprang up in Japan thousands of years ago. People believed that the first beings were a god named Izanagi and a goddess named Izanami.

Izanagi, it was said, stood on the "bridge of heaven" and cast a spear into the waters. When he lifted his spear again, sand fell from it and formed the islands of Japan.

The sun-goddess was a daughter of Izanagi. The god of darkness was related to this goddess but he was her enemy.

The first emperor of Japan (as the legend goes) was a grandson of the sun-goddess. There are many Japanese to this very day who suppose that the emperor of the country is descended from the sun-goddess.

An old custom of people who believed in the Shinto faith was to move away from any house where a person died. This custom was changed in the course of time, and a "mourning house" was built near many private homes. The mourning house has been called "the Shinto temple."

Describing the old beliefs, a Japanese said:

"There are bad gods as well as good gods. We must prevent the bad gods from doing us harm. We offer them good food, we play the harp and the flute for them, we sing or dance or do anything which may put them in good humor."

In efforts to explain earthquakes which caused damage in their land, the Japanese declared that bad spirits or gods were angry. The angry gods also were supposed to cause floods, hurricanes and famines.

The old "harakiri" custom of the Japanese arose from the Shinto viewpoint about spirits. Persons who committed harakiri said they would "follow the master to the next world." Strong efforts have been made to stamp out the custom, and there are not nearly so many cases nowadays as in former times. "Harakiri" does take place, however, from time to time. A wife may kill herself so she can look after her husband in the world of spirits. A case is on record where a fourteen-year-old boy took his own life in order to serve the spirit of his master's little son.

Buddhism has become the chief religion of Japan, but many things about the old Shinto faith are still believed by millions of Japanese.
